Bonn Urges
Quick Move
For ParleyBrentano Says
Allies Will Soon
Ask Conference

BERLIN (AP)—West Germany put the heat on the Western Big Three powers Monday for a quick move toward a conference with the Soviet Union on the Berlin crisis. There was quiet on the East-West dividing line in Berlin, but no sense of peace.

With policy formation a continuing subject of Allied consultations in Washington, Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano announced in Bonn that the Western powers in the next few days will demand talks with Moscow.

Brentano said such talks are needed to make clear the positions of both sides before the East Germans' blockade of Berlin develops into a catastrophe and it should be on the foreign minister level.

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer also took a hard line. West German government sources said he wants the West to take the initiative in starting negotiations, and gave instructions to this effect to Wilhelm Grewe, West German ambassador to the United States.

Rusk Expects Negotiations

U. S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk said in New York there will be negotiations with the Soviet Union on the Berlin crisis. He said it is possible but not likely that negotiations will take place before the Sept. 19 opening of the U.N. General Assembly.

Rusk said the time, place and circumstances still are under discussion.

He also said Soviet Premier Khrushchev knows the West will not be pushed out of Berlin.

In his Bonn announcement, Brentano hinted that differences between France and the other Western powers about the advisability of an immediate conference no longer exist. He suggested the meeting could be held either before or after the Sept. 17 West German election and the Sept. 19 opening of the U.N. General Assembly.

Sealed Border Quiet

Quiet settled Monday night on the sealed-off sector border in Berlin, but the Western Allies refused to be trapped into a false sense of security and maintained their troops and armor on alert. For the second straight day, the East Germans manned their barricades with only pistol-toting police.

The only break in the calm came in the British sector along the Spandauer Schifffahrts Canal. East Berlin police there fired several rounds toward some workmen who were repairing a street. The shots evidently were intended only to intimidate. A British armored car raced up and the police desisted.

Aside from this sort of thing, it appeared to Western sources as though the East Germans have gone as far as their orders permit and now are sitting back, awaiting big power negotiations. Khrushchev has said these "must" be held on Germany and Berlin by the end of this year.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. Negro and white children stood in line together or sat in the same classrooms while school administrators went about the normal business of registration.

Stop Meddling,
Japan Leader
Tells Khrush

TOKYO (AP)—Japan does not intend to be pried loose from its alliance with the United States and its associations with the free world, Prime Minister Hayato Ikeda declared Monday in a letter to Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

The Japanese prime minister answered a personal message from Khrushchev, delivered by Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan during a nine-day visit to Japan.

The Ikeda letter reflected this government's ruffled feelings at blunt attacks by Khrushchev and Mikoyan on the U.S.-Japanese security pact.

Ikeda said the treaty is "purely defensive" and to "a country which has no intention of threatening the security of another country, obviously there should be no reason to say that this treaty is a threat," Ikeda wrote.

Soviet attacks on the pact are "totally beyond the comprehension of the people of Japan," he added, and are a meddling in Japan's affairs.

He told Khrushchev that if he wants a peace treaty with Japan, all he has to do is return to Japan "territories which are integrally hers," meaning the Soviet-held southern Kurile Islands.

As to Japan's relations with the West, Ikeda said, "Japan pursues freedom and democracy as the highest political ideals. This is and will continue to be our immutable policy."

Japan does not hesitate to establish amicable relations with countries of different political ideology, he continued, but such countries must "strictly observe at all times the principles of peaceful settlement of disputes, nonresort to threats of force, and absolute noninterference in the domestic affairs of other countries."

Soviet Charges Foreign Subs Prowl Its Shores

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union charged Monday night that foreign submarines have been sneaking close to its shores on underwater patrols and warned that future intruders will be destroyed.

A formal statement by the Soviet news agency Tass did not identify the nationality of the submarines, but claimed they had been in Soviet territorial waters while submerged and "conducted maneuvers and observations with the object of reconnaissance."

The statement presumably had the full authority of the Soviet government.

"In conformity with international law and according to the legislation of the Soviet Union, foreign submarines can enter Soviet territorial waters only by

Negro 'Arsenal'
Guns Are Found

MONROE, N. C. (UPI)—Police and state troopers, determined to prevent further race rioting in this tense city, raided the stronghold of a Negro integration splinter group Monday.

Law officers holding shotguns and tear gas guns at the ready descended on the headquarters of Negro leader Robert Williams, which officers had described as an armed camp, but found both guns and Williams gone.

State police immediately asked the FBI to issue an alarm for Williams who is charged with kidnapping a white couple and holding them hostage during Sunday night's rioting.

He insisted repeatedly that he does not provide service to illegal bookmaking establishments. In fact, Tolin said he would shut off his service to anyone who turned out to be a bookmaker.

He has never had to do that he said.

Tolin conceded, at a hearing of the Senate Investigations subcommittee, that some of his customers are known to him only as Jo Jo, Biff, and Charlie Eye.

"When someone calls you for information," asked Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., "and says 'This is Jo Jo; don't you inquire Jo Jo who?'"

"No, sir," Tolin replied.

Tolin said he has only one overriding interest in his clients—to see that they pay in advance.

When Chairman John L. McClellan, D-Ark., asked if bookmakers did not comprise his clientele, Tolin replied: "Not at the prices I charge."

He said he charges $20 for the winner of one race, $30 for two races, and $50 for five results—the most he will distribute to any one person.

Tolin said he flashes the unofficial results of horse races all over the country from a three-story building in Wilmington, Del. He said his sports service can receive about 30 telephone calls at a time, although there are 100 telephone lines running into the building.

Tolin said he disagrees with a statement made by his father, Joseph Tolin, at a District of Columbia Public Utilities Committee hearing several years ago. The elder Tolin said, "Our service would have probably no value except to a bookmaker."

To the Senate group, the younger Tolin said: "I can honestly state it (the service) is a necessity for the professional bettor, but for a bookmaker it is of no value."

"I claim I do not service bookmakers," he repeated.

Asked how his clients place the bets that worry them so much, Tolin said he assumes they place them through friends who visit the race tracks.

Three Moslems Slain
In Algerian Rioting

ALGIERS (UPI)—A mob of 2,000 French settler youths, inflamed by Moslem extremist attacks, ran wild in the streets of downtown Oran Monday, attacking Moslems, wrecking shops and burning city buses.

Officials said at least three Moslems were killed and 32 others injured in the flareup of rioting before police dispersed the crowds.

Tass gave no details of the alleged intrusions. No dates were given, nor geographical areas.

Operator Says

WASHINGTON (AP)—A sports service operator told Senate gambling investigators Monday that his clients pay him up to $50 a day for the relief of acute "tension and anxiety" about the outcome of horse races.

Albert Tolin, 30, partner and general manager of the Delaware Sports Service, testified his race track flashes are available only to professional bettors who place legitimate wagers.

Katanga Boss

Task ForceDozens Of White
Military Officers
Swept From Army

ELISABETHVILLE, Katanga, the Congo (AP)—The U. N. Congo Command swept white officers from Katanga's army Monday in a military operation apparently aimed at helping this secessionist province back under the rule of Leopoldville.

Dozens of Belgian, French, British and other white military men commanding the Negro troops of Katanga President Moise Tshombe were arrested under conditions resembling a state of siege.

Then Tshombe capitulated. He announced he would release all the foreign officers from their duties. They include some who hid out and refused to surrender. Plans were formulated for a peaceful evacuation.

A task force of Swedish and Indian troops commanded by Indian Brig. Singappa Raja struck Elisabethville, the capital, at dawn.

Key Operations Seized

They seized the airport, post office, telephone exchange and radio station and raided army headquarters. Guards were posted at hospitals. Aside from press dispatches, communications with the outside world were cut off. Armored cars roved the streets.

Minor clashes marked the occupation. Windows and doors were wrecked at the post office, where a company of Indians refused to allow Katangans even to collect their mail. A door at army headquarters was broken down. Troops threw out an African reporter who tried to enter the radio station.

Conor Cruise O'Brien, U.N. representative in Katanga, reported "a few shots were fired, but nobody was hurt."

The interior minister, Godefroid Munongo, a strong man of Tshombe's regime, was placed under house arrest for a while.

Tshombe freed him by driving through the cordon of guards and removing him in the presidential car.

Cheered by Katangans, Tshombe made a tour of the city and urged the people to keep at their jobs and remain calm.

Raja reported 68 arrests in the first six hours of the operation against the 512 European and other white men on the payroll of the Katanga regime.

U.N. spokesman Michel Tombelaine described the operation as intended to preserve internal security. Congo President Joseph Kasavubu had called on the United Nations to get rid of the foreign officers, chiefly Belgian, still serving in defiance of a U.N. Security Council resolution calling for their withdrawal.

Brazil Military
Chieftains Say
'No' To GoulartDecree Sets Off
Bitter Dispute
As Crisis Mounts

ABDUCTED—Mrs. G. Bruce Stegall, of Marshville, N. C., tells reporters of the experience she and her husband had Sunday night when they were whisked away by a group of Negroes. Mrs. Stegall said the Negroes tied her to a chair and her husband to a stool. They were released three and one-half hours later. Both testified before a grand jury yesterday. (AP Photofax)

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—The future of Brazil's government was in bitter dispute Monday night in the wake of a military decree that Vice President Joao Goulart will not be allowed to return home to assume the presidency.

The three top military men in the Cabinet of resigned President Janio Quadros, dead set against letting the country come under leftist rule, announced the flat "no" for Goulart. Interim President Raineri Mazzilli transmitted the dramatic announcement to Congress at Brasilia. It was received with alarm for its possible effect on democratic rule in Brazil.

Labor Deputy Eloi Dutra shouted that he would resign rather than become "part of a democracy tutored by machine guns."

Adauto Cardoso, member of the National Democratic Union, usually in opposition to Goulart, served notice of a Supreme Court suit charging Mazzilli and the form of government.

New Elections Hinted

Mazzilli hinted at new elections. He mentioned in his announcement that he would not be a candidate to succeed Quadros.

As head of the Chamber of Deputies, Mazzilli became acting president Friday when Quadros resigned. Goulart was in the Far East after a friendship trip to Communist China.

Under the constitution, elections must be held in 60 days when both presidency and vice presidency are vacant.

Mazzilli's announcement was not broadcast in Brazil, where strict censorship prevailed. Thus few citizens of Rio de Janeiro knew of the military's formal turnout of Goulart.

A crowd of about 500 demonstrators massed in the heart of the city Monday night but was broken up by police hurling tear gas bombs and firing shots in the air. Several persons were arrested.

At about the time the ministers of war, navy and air force were informing Congress of their decision to bar Goulart for security reasons, the wealthy left-leaning vice president was stoutly asserting in Paris his constitutional right to the presidency.

There was no immediate hint from any source as to what now may take place to break the deadlock.

Goulart Issues Statement

While political leaders struggled to find a way out of the impasse produced by fears of Goulart's pronounced leftist views, Brazilians sweated under a bank holiday, alert military and police patrols, strike threats, and a fear of strife.

Goulart, 42, who was elected vice president last year, issued his statement to reporters in Paris. It was his first since President Quadros started the nation last Friday by resigning the office.

Goulart was en route home from Peiping, where he praised Red China's boss, Mao Tse-tung.

"Under the constitutional rules of my country I consider myself the new president of Brazil," he declared. "I am in direct contact with Rio de Janeiro. I am waiting the arrival here of a delegation of Brazilian Parliament members. I think that a solution is approaching and in any case I will act in the best interests of my country."

Aides and friends of Goulart said he is firmly determined to return to Brazil to take office.

Plans To Orbit
Monkey Dropped

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Plans to orbit a monkey in the Discoverer satellite program have been scrapped, top Air Force officials said Monday.

At a press conference for Air Force secretary Eugene Zuckert, Gen. Bernard Schriever said that plans to fire a monkey into orbit in Discoverer XXII were called off at the last minute.

Schriever said although reports have said the monkey shot might be rescheduled, "the monkey is out."

He said that data for development of other programs took priority over plans to keep a Rhesus monkey in orbit for up to four days and then recover him to study the effects of radiation on the passenger.

Met And Its Musicians Get In Tune, Save Opera

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Metropolitan Opera and its musicians settled their wage dispute Monday by agreeing to accept whatever terms Labor Secretary Arthur J. Goldberg lays down.

The settlement assured that the opera will go on as scheduled during the 1961-62 season.

Sources close to Goldberg said the general manager of the opera indicated privately that enough performing artists would be available to make it possible to perform this season.

The sources also said the parties involved, not Goldberg, suggested the binding arbitration.

Goldberg announced the agreement after a 5½-hour conference with representatives of both sides who came to the Labor Department from New York at his invitation.

Time, Place

DiscussionWest Might Take Problem To U.N.
If Crisis Deepens

NEW YORK (UPI)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk said Monday that the West will hold negotiations with Russia on the Berlin crisis. He indicated that if the Communists make the situation worse the West might take the problem to the United Nations.

Rusk, who met for more than two hours here Monday with U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld and U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson, said "the exact timing, place and circumstances" of the East-West Berlin talks were yet to be worked out.

He told a news conference at the Waldorf Astoria hotel that it was "possible but not likely" the negotiations could get underway before the U.N. General Assembly session opens Sept. 19.

May Go To U.N.

"Certainly if the crisis deepens and becomes worse we can expect it to go before the United Nations," he said, adding that the world organization then might be expected "to suggest that the parties concerned negotiate."

But he observed: "I suppose negotiations would precede any U.N. move."

Rusk said his prediction of negotiations on the smoldering crisis did not imply that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev had already agreed to talks on Berlin. But he said such an East-West confrontation was "inherent" in a situation where proposals have been made by either side.

"I think Khrushchev knows that we will not be pushed out of Berlin," Rusk declared. "... It is too serious to leave the situation in the hands of a PFC (private first class) at the border."

Reports Brushed Aside

The state secretary brushed aside reports that President Charles de Gaulle of France was balking at U.S.-British moves to take the initiative in setting up negotiations with the Kremlin.

"Discussions among the (Western) foreign ministers are now going on and will continue. We are not out of contact with the Russians on this," he said.

"There will be negotiations. It is possible but not likely that they will be before the U.N. meeting. The exact timing, place and circumstances are something that is being discussed at the present time."

Rusk said he did not expect that the East-West meeting would be limited to the subject of Berlin. "The Russian proposals have to do with Germany and Central Europe as well," he said.

Senate Passes
Air Piracy Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate passed and sent to the White House Monday a bill that would create a new class of crime—air piracy—and make it a federal offense punishable by death.

The bill, prompted by a recent outbreak of hijackings of commercial airliners, was approved by a voice vote. It was passed by the House, 373-5, last week.

The bill would give a jury or a judge the discretion of whether to impose the death penalty on persons convicted of forcible seizure or attempted seizure of an airplane. It provided an alternate penalty of 20 years to life in prison.

The bill also would impose penalties ranging up to $10,000 fine and 20 years in prison for unarmed assault or threats on flight crew members, including stewardesses. The same crime involving use of deadly weapons would be punishable by imprisonment from 20 years to life. The death penalty, however, would not be applicable in these cases.

80 Peace Corpsmen
Greeted By Kennedy

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy gave the first Peace Corps volunteers scheduled for overseas assignment a personal sendoff Monday and said their influence may be far reaching.

Kennedy said the volunteers' willingness to forego personal gain to work in underdeveloped nations "should make all Americans proud and make them all appreciative."

The President greeted the 80 volunteers in a brief ceremony in the White House rose garden.

The delegation was made up of men and women to be assigned to Ghana and Tanganyika.

Rejuvenated Regime Algeria Rebels Promise France Tougher Time

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP)—Algeria's Tripoli meeting's decisions "dealt rebel government, rejuvenated by a victory of its revolutionary wing over the moderates, promised a tougher time on the battlefield and at the negotiating table."

Internationally, it showed it would keep its distance from the West and pursue a neutralist line in the cold war. But it promised to mobilize "the maximum of material, political and diplomatic support so as to weaken the international position of French colonialism."

A statement Monday from headquarters of the reshuffled Algerian provisional government here reported on the month-long meeting at Tripoli, Libya, of the National Council of the Algerian revolution which decided Sunday's Cabinet changes. This, the main policy-making body of the rebellion, is composed largely of men who are actually doing the fighting in Algeria.

It decided to drop Ferhat Abbas, 62, the bourgeois revolutionary who has been political head of its movement since 1958. In his place as premier, it installed Youssef ben Khedda, 41, a man much further to the left.

The finance minister, Ahmed Francis, and the social affairs minister, Abdelhamid Mehri, other moderates who backed Abbas in agreeing to peace talks with France, were dropped too. In came young leaders who have been with the rebellion since it started in 1954.

Pressman Hits Tax Boost Talk

BALTIMORE (AP)—Hyman A. Pressman, self-appointed watchdog of state spending, Monday challenged a prediction by Maryland's chief fiscal adviser that a tax increase in 1963 seems inevitable.

Pressman, a Baltimore attorney, took issue with a weekend remark by John S. Shriver, director of the Fiscal Research Bureau. Shriver said Maryland is "right back in the hole" despite a major tax increase in 1958.

Shriver told the State Association of County Commissioners that the cost of government is creeping up faster than the personal income on which state revenue depends. He said an adjustment in taxes to restore the balance will be necessary by 1963.

Pressman claimed Shriver's remarks contradict the comptroller's report of a $17.5 million surplus as of June 30, 1961. He said state officials are predicting a surplus of $6 million by next June and such predictions are "consistently pessimistic."

West Proposes Talks On Total Atom Test Ban

GENEVA (AP)—The United States and Britain proposed for the first time Monday negotiation of a total ban on all nuclear tests, including the smallest tactical atomic weapons.

The offer was hinged on Soviet acceptance of a substantially stronger control system than previously envisaged. This alone made it appear doomed to failure.

Soviet delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin immediately tossed his usual dash of cold water on the Western move, calling it a mere technical measure which contains nothing new and which in any case is unrealistic "while arms and military preparedness are being increased throughout the world."

"It is impossible to continue the negotiations without paying attention to the developments of international life," Tsarapkin added, presumably in an oblique reference to the tension over Berlin.

The East-West deadlock remained total at the end of the 90-minute session, 337th in the long series. It was the opening of a show-down phase of the 34-month-old conference, prior to the debate at next month's United Nations General Assembly.

The three delegations agreed to meet again Wednesday. But if any Western officials expected the new move to produce the slightest progress in the bogged-down talks, they were quickly disillusioned by Tsarapkin's initial reaction.

"A solution of the test ban issue is possible only in connection with general disarmament," he declared. "We cannot accept any controls without disarmament."

Young Thieves' "Robin Hood" Gang Smashed

FERNDAL, Md. (AP)—Anne Arundel County Police report they've broken up a Robin Hood band of young teen-agers responsible for at least 32 break-ins and thefts in the northern section of the county.

The youths gave away many of the articles and some of the money they had stolen to "those who needed it," police said.

Four boys, ranging in age from 12 to 14, and a 13-year-old girl were picked up last week, and police said Monday there may be other youths apprehended. All those arrested live in the Pasadena area.

Articles recovered ranged from a set of bongo drums to 30,000 trading stamps. They included transistor radios, watches, wallets, jewelry, bathing suits, binoculars, shoes, cigarettes and several large stuffed toy animals.

Police said they were unable to determine how many articles or how much money was stolen by the band. One of the youngsters told officers he used $25 "to keep somebody out of jail."

The children have been released pending action by the Juvenile Protective Bureau of the county police.

Truman Takes Issue With GOP Charge

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (UPI)—Harry S. Truman said Monday the Republicans "don't know what they are talking about" when they accuse the Kennedy administration of adopting a policy of appeasement in recent foreign developments.

The charge was made Sunday by Rep. William E. Miller, R-N.Y., Republican national chairman.

Gadget Launches Empty Beer Cans

NEW YORK (UPI)—A New York sporting goods store came up Monday with yet another new gimmick—a "beer can launcher" powered by blank .22 caliber cartridges.

An advertisement said the launcher, which shoots empty beer cans 100 feet into the air, was designed for target practice and sells for $23.50.

Judge Rules JFK Exceeded His Authority

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—U.S. Dist. Judge Walter E. Hoffman ruled Monday that President Kennedy exceeded his authority in instructing the Coast Guard to prevent a U.S. marshal from serving attachment papers on the Cuban freighter Bahia de Nipe.

Hoffman said it is clear that the President "has the duty to discharge the responsibilities of the United States in international matters with a view to avoiding difficulties with other governments."

"In the absence of any statutory restrictions," said Hoffman, "he may act through such executive office or department as appears best adapted to effectuate the desired end. The difficulty here presented is that Congress has enacted legislation on the subject."

The judge cited Title 50, U.S. Code, Section 191, which says essentially that the Coast Guard can prevent the boarding of a vessel under seizure to protect it or the waterfront or the borders of the nation from harm, or to secure the observance of rights and obligations for the United States.

"There is no statute expressly authorizing the executive to effectively destroy the judicial process," said Hoffman. "for, without the ability to serve the court process, the doors of the court may be forever closed."

Pennsy Asks Court Action To Bar Strike

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The Pennsylvania Railroad Monday sought an injunction to bar a strike threatened for midnight Thursday by the Transport Workers Union.

It also filed suit for $10 million or "such sum as may be just" for damages it said it was suffering in freight and passenger cancellations because of the TWU strike threat.

Both actions were filed in U.S. District Court, and a hearing on the injunction request tentatively was set for Tuesday afternoon. PRR attorneys charge that a strike would be illegal under the Railway Labor Act.

The TWU has threatened a strike in the 13 states of the PRR system, charging that the PRR used delaying tactics in submitting its side of a dispute to an arbitrator.

Andrew J. Kaelin, a vice president of the TWU, said a strike at midnight Thursday would be a resumption of the 12-day walkout last September that halted all PRR traffic.

Private Rites Today For Gail Russell

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Private funeral services will be held Tuesday for actress Gail Russell, found dead in her bottle-littered apartment a year after she vowed she had won her battle with alcohol.

Police said the death of the 36-year-old brunette was due to natural causes, but an autopsy was performed Monday night to determine the exact cause.

Miss Russell was found Sunday by two friends. Police said she had died sometime between Thursday and Saturday night.

Back From Arctic Archer-Biologist Whale Hunter Fails To Get Shot

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Dr. Vagn Flyger, Maryland's whale-hunting biologist, has returned empty-handed from his Arctic expedition.

He didn't get a chance to shoot one of the drug-tipped arrows with which he hoped to kill white whale, and which he has used with success or Maryland deer.

"The weather was too rough," Flyger reported Monday as he returned to his office at the University of Maryland's Natural Resources Institute.

"We saw a lot of whales but the boats were too frail to pursue them," he said. Winds were 30 to 50 miles per hour most of the time and the Eskimo boats leaked heavily in rough water.

Flyger spent 25 days in an Eskimo whale-hunting village on Okevik, an island in the Beaufort Sea off the mouth of the Mackenzie River.

He said the Eskimos, who make an annual summer encampment on the island, had taken 41 whales before he arrived. They got only one more before the bad weather set in. That was two days after his arrival.

"I had wanted to see them take one (with harpoon) before I tried the bow and arrow," the biologist reported. "Unfortunately, we didn't get another chance."

Far from being disappointed about his trip, however, Flyger said he was eager to give the experiment a try next year under more favorable conditions.

"I'd like to go back in May next time," he said. "I know the lay of the land now, what conditions

Power Firm Seeks Damages

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Electric Co., and the Conowingo Power Co., of Elton, Md., filed damage suits Monday against 14 electrical equipment manufacturers sentenced earlier this year for a part in what the government called the nation's largest anti-trust conspiracy.

Philadelphia Electric filed five suits against 14 firms and Conowingo filed against seven of the same manufacturers.

The PE suits referred to equipment purchases totalling some $3 million. The amount of damages was not set, pending further investigation. The Conowingo suit, being handled by the same law firm, referred to purchase of some $25,000 of equipment and also did not estimate damages.

Both suits seek triple damages, once these have been ascertained.

The suits were filed in United States District Court where earlier this year 29 of the nation's largest heavy electrical equipment manufacturers and some of their officers were fined nearly $2 million for price-fixing and bid-rigging.

The wool of the Angora rabbit is valued for its length, softness, luster and fineness.

No Room To Spare

TOKYO (AP) — Circus and acrobatic troupes are enjoying a revival in Communist China. Peiping radio reports one of the most popular acts is that of an 18-year-old youth who slides his full-grown body into a plastic barrel 9 inches in diameter and 32 inches long.

Rees Evidence Hearing To Be Held On Friday

SPOTSVYLVANIA, Va. (AP) — Melvin Davis Rees Jr., accused slayer of the Carroll V. Jackson Jr. family of Louisa County, will be brought to circuit court here Friday for a hearing on the admissibility of evidence against him in Virginia.

The Hyattsville, Md., musician is scheduled to go on trial here Sept. 18 for the murder of Carroll Jackson. He already is under a life sentence imposed in federal court in Baltimore last winter for the kidnap-slashing of two other members of the family — Mrs. Mildred Jackson, 27, and a daughter, Susan, 5.

The major issue to be determined Friday appears to be the effect of a June 19 U.S. Supreme Court decision of admission of illegally gathered evidence.

Prior to that ruling, evidence in state courts did not have to pass the standards of legal seizure. If a defendant felt his rights were violated, it was up to him to seek civil redress.

In question are an alleged handwritten account, purported to describe the last hours of the Jackson family, and a .38-caliber pistol. Both were found by FBI agents in a locked accordion case in the home of Rees' parents at Hyattsville.

The FBI had obtained parental permission to conduct the search while Rees, who owned the accordion case, was being held under arrest in Memphis, Tenn.

At the trial last winter, Federal Judge Roszel C. Thomsen in Baltimore refused to allow the government to admit the handwritten account, but permitted introduction of the weapon.

Railroad Retirement Act Revision Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. James E. Van Zandt, R-Pa., Monday urged the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce to approve legislation to allow railroad men to retire at age 62 without 30 years service, at a reduced annuity rate.

Van Zandt said that about 5,000 men would take advantage of the earlier retirement, from the present age 65 limit, and the $2 million cost would require about .04 per cent of the present payroll tax.

Such legislation would bring the Railroad Retirement Act into line with Social Security regulations revised recently, Van Zandt said. He said the Railway Labor Executives Association, composed of 21 standard railway labor organizations, has requested such a bill.

Government Will Sell Surplus Plane Plant

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government announced Monday it wants to sell a surplus aircraft plant at Bengies, near Baltimore. The General Services Administration said bids will be opened here Nov. 27.

The aircraft plant, known as a national industrial reserve plant, has been operated by The Martin Co. since 1941.

Maryland Briefs

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Supreme Court will be asked in about two weeks to declare unconstitutional a new Potomac River compact between Maryland and Virginia.

Hyman A. Pressman, lawyer for watermen opposed to the compact, announced Monday his plan to carry his fight to the highest court.

Pressman is challenging both the compact itself and its approval by voters last year. The Maryland Court of Appeals already has upheld it.

BALTIMORE (AP) — The United Auto Workers local at the Chevrolet assembly plant here has voted 1,051 to 5 to authorize a strike against General Motors.

A union contract expires Thursday. The Baltimore local has authorized a strike over local issues even if national agreement is reached.

OCEAN CITY (AP) — Frederick W. Briggeman, 24, and Thomas E. Wright, 26, of Baltimore were sentenced Monday to 60 days in jail for theft of a wallet and $41 on the beach.

They also have been charged with stealing a second wallet containing more than $300.

Actor Bob Mitchem Unexpected Opening Day Visitor At Md. Fair

TIMONIUM, Md. (AP) — Movie actor Bob Mitchem added glamour to the opening of the 80th annual Maryland State Fair by making an unexpected and unannounced appearance.

Mitchem, who has starred in many Western motion pictures, was on hand to see the quarter-horse show, Belmont Farms, his Trappe, Md. homestead, had entered three horses in the exhibition.

The tall, rangy film cowboy hero, attired in a bright red shirt, tan trousers, 10-gallon hat and dark glasses, was to have ridden in the cutting class of the quarter-horse show, but the job went to one of his wranglers, Bird-dog Rogers.

Sansie Bee his entry in that class, was Mitchem's only ribbon-winner. The horse finished fourth in the contest, which was won by

Va. Interstate Road Location Approved

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The state highway department was advised by federal authorities Monday that a western corridor has been approved for the location of Interstate 77 in southwest Virginia.

The state highway commission approved the western corridor 7-1 last December, and the matter had been under study by the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads.

The approved location is in an area extending from the end of the West Virginia turnpike near Princeton, W.Va., to Woodlawn, Va.

William Howard Taft is the only man in American history to have held the offices of both President and Chief Justice.

Surplus Wheat Will Be Stored Near Altoona

WASHINGTON (AP) — A special committee will be established to draw up a policy for the acquisition of storage space for 140,000 bushels of surplus wheat in the vicinity of Altoona, Pa., Rep. James E. Van Zandt, R-Pa., reported Monday.

Storage of the wheat in that area is designed to have it strategically located for use in the event of nuclear attack, Van Zandt said.

The committee will include representatives from the agriculture and health, education and welfare departments and from the military and civil defense agencies.

Secrets Of Charm by John Robert Powers

Three Smart Girls—Three Different Diets

Why can some women eat so much — yet gain so little? Their secret is really no secret at all — it's plainly revealed in their personalities.

Let me tell you about three smart girls — all remarkably similar in age, occupation, height and build. So much alike, they can't eat alike? No, ma'am, they can't! Each one is smart enough personally than the insurance diets must be calculated more personally than the insurance charts posted on drugstore scales would indicate.

Why? Because their temperaments and rates of metabolism are so very different. Each one fits into a separate category identified by nutritional research as active, moderately active and inactive. They perform at a different pace, burning up more or less energy according to individual type.

How would a doctor or nutrition expert decide the correct calorie-count for each of our three smart girls? Combining matter "with math, they choose first an "ideal weight." For our trio, let's say that 130 pounds would be the proper ballast for their identical physical framework.

The very active girl will use up 20 calories of energy per pound per day. The moderately active type will consume 15 calories, while 13 is the inactive woman's average expenditure per pound daily.

Multiply 130 by 20. The answer — 2,600 calories — is the active woman's proper daily portion. The moderate may consume 1,850 calories each day. If either weighs more than 130, reducing total intake by 500 calories will trim them to their ideal weight without inducing fatigue.

The inactive girl, who is sedentary by nature or by illness, should learn to be satisfied with 1,600 calories, a number likely to conflict with a large frame and a lively appetite. Here is where appetite training becomes absolutely necessary, to stabilize good health and a slender appearance.

If she is overweight, reducing her calorie intake to 1,200 is permitted, but it is never wise to take on a diet below that figure. The strict thousand-or-less calorie diet that we hear about occasionally should be undertaken only under strict medical orders and close supervision.

A periodic calorie-check is wise since most women change their types at various ages and stages in their lifetimes although a very active woman will appear to have a personality geared for perpetual motion long past the point at which most women are pleased to taper off. That tendency to gain pounds and to slow down during the thirties and forties is a sure sign that a new and lower calorie-count is due.

Keep your own calorie-check with my pamphlet, "How Much Should YOU Weigh?" Always consult your physician before you decide to change your maintenance diet drastically. Mail your pamphlet request to me, John Robert Powers, c/o this newspaper, enclosing 10c and a stamped, self-addressed envelope. My Diet and Calorie Guide is also available upon request, free of charge.

Chapter 914 Places 2nd In District Contest

Allegany Tri-Hi-Y Plans OTC

September 9 and 10 were selected for the Officer Training Course for Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y at a meeting of the latter, Saturday at the home of Deborah Boden. OTC will be held at Pleasant Valley.

Discussing fall activities, the group included formal initiation of new members at the second general meeting in September. Chairmen will be named at the first one.

In line with the club's service to the community the group also discussed filing and typing for the Crippled Children's League, collecting for the March of Dimes, heading a clothing drive at Allegany; the "little sister party" for under-privileged girls; sponsoring a white Thanksgiving drive by collecting canned goods for the needy as well as ushering at school and community functions.

A card party will be held at St. Anthony's Church, Ridgeley to night at 8:15. Setback and 500 will be played and refreshments served.

American vessels must pay tolls to navigate the Panama Canal just as do ships of any other nation.

Mrs. Catherine Breedlove, senior regent, and Mrs. Mary A. Humbertson, recorder, attended from here and will give their report at the general meeting to be held September 8 at the Moose home.

Top chapters meeting their quotas of candidates were Wheaton, Suitland, Edgemere, Glen Burnie and Gardenville.

Mrs. Dorothy Churchill, New Haven, Conn., graduate grand regent and advisor at Mooseheart, was an official visitor and conducted a question and answer period on policies. Dr. Harry C. Byrd, supreme governor; Paul P. Schmitz, director general, and J. Jack Stoehr, past supreme and district governor and regional director, spoke on the part of the Women of the Moose and ideals for a greater society and Mooseheart.

Friday Mrs. Nellie Allewalt, Catonsville, was crowned "Queen" for obtaining the most candidates. A reception followed. Besides the general sessions, when Mrs. Gloria Hammond presided, there was a memorial service held jointly with the men at the Wicomico Hotel and an informal get-together Sunday. Miss Shirli L. Farrar, executive director of the Guide Dogs for the Blind, explained the work of the group and asked members to save labels from dog food for the benefit of training dogs and the expenses of the blind persons. Some 298 women attended.

Injuries Fatal To Keyser Man Hurt In Crash

A crushed chest received in a two-car collision on McMullen Highway near Rawlings Saturday morning in which only one other person was hospitalized proved fatal Sunday to a Keyser man.

Ira Looman Ravenscroft, 67, of 284 South Main Street, Keyser, died at 6:30 p.m. Sunday in Memorial Hospital where he had been admitted Saturday.

Only the driver of the car in which he was a passenger, Willie Elmer Tate, 353 Davis Street, Keyser, was hospitalized.

Seven other persons in the two cars received only minor injuries and were treated at the hospital dispensary.

State Police said the mishap occurred at 10:40 a. m. six-tenths of a mile south of Rawlings.

A southbound car operated by Ronald Paul Berg, Maysville, W. Va., attempted to pass a stopped vehicle and went into the northbound lane, hitting the front of the Tate auto, driving it into an abutment.

Taken to Memorial Hospital were Tate, his wife, Inez Tate and the victim's wife, Mary (Purdy) Ravenscroft, where the two men were admitted. The women were treated and discharged.

The four other persons in the Berg auto who like the driver had only minor injuries were Annabelle Berg, Chicago; David Nessleroth, Naomi Berg and Irma Berg, all of Maysville.

Ravenscroft's death was due to a crushed chest and punctured lung. He also had two fractured shoulders, according to the deputy county medical examiner, Dr. Benedict Skitarelis.

Trooper J. A. Sweitzer, who investigated, said Berg is being charged with failure to keep to the right center of the highway.

Ravenscroft was born at 21st Bridge, McCoolie, the son of the late Samuel and Lydia (Ravenscroft) Ravenscroft.

A retired B&O Railroad carman, he was a member of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen; Trinity Lutheran Church and its Men's Bible Class, and Nancy Hanks Post 3518, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Besides his wife, he is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Joseph Taylor; a son, Richard Ravenscroft; a sister, Mrs. Ira Bingham, Chicago, and seven grandchildren.

The body is at the residence. Services will be conducted in the home Wednesday at 2 p. m. by Rev. Donald D. Henderson, pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church, assisted by Rev. John D. MacLeod Jr., pastor of First Presbyterian Church, Keyser.

Burial will be in Meadow Point Cemetery, Keyser.

Negotiations With Truckers Continue

BALTIMORE (AP) — Negotiations between the Teamsters International and a group of Maryland-District of Columbia trucking employers resumed yesterday.

No progress was reported after simultaneous talks last week in Baltimore, Washington, Hagerstown and Cumberland. The existing union contract expires Thursday at 6 p. m.

Involved is a contract for some 6,000 members of Hagerstown Local 992, Cumberland Local 453, Salisbury Local 789, Washington Local 639 and Baltimore Local 557.

In Cumberland, officials of the Local 453 have scheduled a meeting Wednesday with representatives of the seven local trucking firms involved.

Virginia Officials Get Report On Potomac Study

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — The mission, composed of observers from the basin states and the day outlined a proposed one-half billion dollar water development program designed to meet the needs of the Potomac River Basin for the next 50 years.

Col. J. U. Allen, assistant engineer of the Baltimore District, presented a progress report to Gov. J. Lindsay Almond and other Virginia officials, explaining the Army's plan for prospective development of the basin.

Allen said Congress had authorized the engineers to plan for an adequate water supply, pollution control, flood control and recreation.

He said development of the north branch of the river above Cumberland, Md., would cost the states in the area a total of $16,935,000. The basin area includes Virginia, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Maryland and the District of Columbia.

Almond said there is no state law which would allow Virginia to participate in the program but added that the project was "vital to the area and vital to the nation."

The Army engineer said the flow of the Potomac at Washington would have to be regulated by reservoirs so that a minimum of 6,000 cubic feet per second would flow uniformly to insure adequate water supply and prevent pollution. Requirements at present demand a flow of 3,300 cubic feet per second.

The engineer said his "primary purpose" in making the progress report was to help the states become aware that they must organize to pay their share of the project.

Almond said he favored a "compact approach" whereby the present Potomac River Advisory Commission, composed of observers from the basin states and the day outlined a proposed one-half billion dollar water development program designed to meet the needs of the Potomac River Basin for the next 50 years.

Ousted W. Va. Game Warden To Get Hearing

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — The West Virginia Civil Service Commission, apparently disregarding an attorney general's opinion in the case, granted a formal hearing Monday to the ousted chief of state game warden.

The commission set Sept. 25 for the hearing requested by Arthur C. Bachman, former chief of the old State Conservation Commission's law enforcement division.

Bachman was not reappointed by Director Warden C. Lane when the commission was reorganized as a new State Department of Natural Resources last July 1 under legislation enacted last winter.

Lane, who gave the post to a former subordinate of Bachman's, was backed up by an attorney general's opinion which said civil service regulations on dismissals did not apply because the post was a new one, to which Bachman had no statutory claim.

Under civil service regulations, a dismissed employee may demand a hearing before the commission, which then may issue an advisory opinion to the head of the department involved.

Lane had no immediate comment on the commission's decision to grant Bachman a hearing, other than to say he would confer with the attorney general and follow whatever advice he is given.

A foreigner is not allowed to enter West Point or Annapolis except by a special act of Congress.

Bud Wilkinson Plans To Talk In West Va.

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — Gov. W. W. Barron announced Friday that Bud Wilkinson, chairman of the President's Committee on Youth Fitness, has tentatively agreed to speak in West Virginia this December or in January.

Barron, who made the announcement at a meeting of his Youth Fitness Council, suggested it might be a good idea for Wilkinson to appear before the Legislature in January.

Wilkinson, who also is head football coach at the University of Oklahoma, also may speak at a statewide youth fitness conference. Such a conference may be held before the end of the year.

State School Supt. Rex Smith also told the council he would seek Board of Education approval of a new position in his department, one that would have to do with health, welfare and physical education.

This is needed, he said, to establish a regular physical education program in state schools. Smith said he would discuss the matter at a Board hearing next month.

Sacred Heart Hospital Adds Recovery Room

A surgical recovery room has been added to the facilities of Sacred Heart Hospital, Sister Mary Richard, administrator, announced yesterday.

The room, located adjacent to the operating rooms, is definitely for the patients welfare to be under constant observation and care immediately following surgery and anesthesia, Sister said.

Mrs. June M. Dunseth, R.N., a graduate of the University of Maryland, who has been specially training for the purpose of handling recovery room work, is in charge of Sacred Heart's new department.

The recovery room has three new stretcher beds which enables three persons to be reacted at one time. The stretcher beds are equipped to enable more gentle handling of the patient, and provide the utmost comfort to the patient during his stay in the recovery room.

The room has many items available for the care of the patient. Some of the emergency features of the room are an emergency drug tray, a combination thoracotomy and tracheotomy tray which enables the surgeon to perform emergency cardiac or respiratory care, piped oxygen, suction apparatus, and blood pressure manometers located along side each bed.

The patients are visited by Mrs. Dunseth prior to surgery and all questions are answered, plus an explanation of the make-up of the recovery room.

Patients remain in the recovery room until they have fully awakened and vital signs are stable, Sister Mary Richard said.

The administrator said the room is only one of many improvements being made in Sacred Heart Hospital. It is felt, she noted, that the new areas and changes will help educate employees for the new policies and procedures that will take place in the construction of the new $4 million hospital planned by the Sisters of Charity in Cumberland.

Boxes Urged For Parking Violations

A discussion on the operation and placement of the city's new parking meters was held at yesterday's meeting of the Mayor and Council, with Mrs. Lucile Roeder advancing the question of placing collection boxes at the meters for drivers who have been ticketed for overtime parking.

Mrs. Roeder, finance commissioner, said it was felt by many that placement of such boxes would relieve parking offenders of the embarrassment of having to go to the Police Station to post their fines, or to Police Court for a hearing.

Police Commissioner Philmore F. Fleming said he had no objection against the receptacles, although he pointed out that they would offer "temptation" to some people.

"The downtown," Fleming said, "cannot be opened up for all-day parkers. Meters are placed for the convenience of shoppers, and the major offenders are the proprietors of stores who want to park close to their places of business."

Members of the Police Department, he added, are told to use common sense in issuing tickets to overtime parkers. The matter will be reviewed at a staff meeting later this week, the commissioner said, adding that he will present any recommendation at next Monday's council session.

In other action affecting the Police Department, the Mayor and Council adopted a resolution commending Officer Frank A. Shober for his "long and efficient service." Officer Shober, who held Badge No. 1, retired Sunday after more than 34 years of service on the force.

Council also granted additional leave of absence to Officer John G. Powers, who has been on leave recuperating from lung surgery. Issuance of checks totaling $67,108 to the Orrie Sensabaugh Construction Company were approved by the Mayor and Council. One check in the amount of $60,655.70 was for partial payment of the firm's work on replacing the 36-inch cross-town water line in the Long Hill region.

The replacement was necessitated because of improvement of U. S. Route 40 in that region in connection with the Cumberland Thruway project.

The other check, for $6,453, represents partial payment for work on constructing a Sewage Treatment plant garage.

Parking Receipts Down

Harry M. Whisner, meter inspector, reported to council yesterday that receipts from parking meters for the week ended August 20 totaled $786.45. The total was $16.25 less than from the previous week, Whisner said.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My wife asked me to write to you about her problem. She says she's too upset.

She works in a factory where all the employees in her department are women. They all work on machines but they don't consider themselves laborers, they think they are critics. Every evening my wife comes home in tears because of what somebody said.

The women find fault with her hair, her dresses, the way she talks and the kind of sandwiches she brings for lunch. One old crowd even suggested that she sign up for a "poise course" to learn how to walk better. I think my wife walks just fine.

What can I do to smooth things down at the factory? If this keeps up my wife may quit and we need her check.—TURK

DEAR TURK: This is a Do-It-Yourself Project. You can't fight your wife's battles for her. As Harry Truman used to say, if she can't stand the heat she'd better get out of the kitchen. Maybe a new factory is the answer if all else fails.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've been married 11 years and have four children, but this letter is not about me, it's about my sister.

She is 16 and has been going with a boy who is 18. They informed my mother last night that they want to get married. He makes $1.25 an hour and his parents say it's all right with them if that's what the kids want. My sister has never earned a dime and says she never will.

She is the youngest 16 I ever saw in my life. She doesn't know anything about keeping house and has no sense of honor when it comes to paying bills. She'll charge until her credit is ruined, then she'll go charge someplace else.

My mother is tired of fighting with this girl. She says maybe marriage will grow her up. What do you say?—AFRAID

DEAR AFRAID: I'm afraid, too — that your mother is wrong. How can an irresponsible, empty-headed child get anything out of marriage when she brings nothing to it?

There are an estimated 23,000 stones in the Washington monument.

ANN LANDERS will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

QUESTION: I am under 25 and my car is in my name. I carry auto insurance under my dad's policy to save me a rate increase. Am I protected?

ANSWER: Probably not, as the application would state that the applicant is the owner of the car. It would be an untrue statement in this case. However, most companies would pay the loss, and collect the additional premium from you to rate the car for you as the main operator.

City To Buy New Equipment For Streets

Bids on the purchase of equipment for the Street Department were approved by the Mayor and Council yesterday.

The approved bids were $1,556 by McIntyre Chevrolet for a half-ton pickup truck; $5,479.98 by Graton Ford for a heavy-duty dump truck; $3,935 by the same firm for a ton dump vehicle, and $840 by McClung Logan for a salt spreader.

Council received but one bid in response to an advertisement for a street sweeper. That was submitted by the McClung-Logan firm in the amount of $9,885. The bid was referred to Street Commissioner John J. Long and City Engineer Charles R. Nuzum for recommendation.

The street commissioner also was authorized to purchase a carload of salt. Other street department action included authorization for the installation of catch basins and storm sewers at the intersection of Second and Arch streets.

The bids of the Cumberland Contracting Company for the resurfacing of two streets also were approved by council. The bids were for $4,863, for the improvement of Brookfield Avenue, and $1,258, for resurfacing a portion of Washington Street.

HOW'S YOUR IQ?
by JIM CONLON

QUESTION: I am under 25 and my car is in my name. I carry auto insurance under my dad's policy to save me a rate increase. Am I protected?

ANSWER: Probably not, as the application would state that the applicant is the owner of the car. It would be an untrue statement in this case. However, most companies would pay the loss, and collect the additional premium from you to rate the car for you as the main operator.

City To Install Traffic Islands At Intersection

The installation of traffic islands at the intersection of Hilltop Drive, Louisiana Avenue and Williams Street was approved yesterday by the Mayor and Council after Police Commissioner Philmore F. Fleming pointed out the need was urgent with the opening of school just a week away.

The order authorizing construction of the islands was delayed during a discussion of the financing of the work. Fleming had asked that it be paid for out of the contingent fund, but other city officials pointed out that such financing would deplete that fund.

The police commissioner stressed the immediate need of the project, explaining that the island can be used by the many students who cross the busy intersection on their way to and from classes.

Commissioner Fleming also said the islands will help reduce speeding of motorists approaching the intersection, and eventually amended his order so that funds will come out of the Police Department appropriation.

Council approved a request for the installation of two 3,000-gallon underground gasoline tanks at 735 East Oldtown Road to replace two tanks of the same size. The request was previously approved by the city engineer and fire department.

Ethics Spelled Out For U.S. Employees

A new code of ethics for government employees, issued by the White House, has been sent to each major agency within the Executive Branch for dissemination. Accusations against individuals in this arm of government, some of which have evolved into ridiculous squabbles over supposed conflicts of interest involving shares of corporate stock held by government employees, have been persistent in recent years.

It has reached the point where Cabinet appointees must divest themselves of life-time investments before they will be confirmed by the Senate. The White House code of ethics, it is hoped, will stop the spectacle of accusing a public official, directly or through innuendo, of using his position for personal gain — usually economic — before any evidence of wrongdoing exists.

Certainly every attempt has been made to cover the exigency of returning public officials to the respected level of unquestioned integrity. The new code spells out in language which cannot be misunderstood what behavior will bring rebuke, loss of employment or more serious punishment to persons tempted to confuse personal and public business.

Barred are gratuities for providing any information to an outside source which is not available to any citizen upon request, aid by government employees to concerns negotiating business dealings with the Executive Branch, retaining interest in a business which does work for the employee's office or accepting any gift or gratuity which in any way could be construed as improper.

Problems of impropriety by public employees are not new. Virtually every President has had his share of embarrassing moments caused by one of his top lieutenants straying from his appointed duties in search of greater reimbursement than government salary. The federal government, however, has never encompassed a greater working force than it does today.

Multiplying the number of human beings eligible for temptation inevitably increases the corruption.

These Days

By George I. Sokolsky

Lost Minutes

It is difficult for the human mind to think politically and historically in terms of minutes and seconds. We are accustomed to think in terms of decades and centuries. When the present war started in 1914, nobody could have believed that it would last until 1961. But it has done just that and all the world is changed. Perhaps we are in another Hundred Years War and somehow we must adjust our minds to that and go about our business expecting short intervals of shooting death.

But nowadays it is necessary to think in seconds and minutes. For instance, a SAC agent might take two minutes; 10 minutes would be regarded as very dangerous. And there are no minutes to lose because up where radar watches, enemy planes and missiles are to be seen and who knows what orders the enemy planes have?

Call me a war-monger, but I know what I have seen. Our air force, at any rate, is prepared; it is ready and alert. But are we ready and alert? Every day I receive letters calling me a war-monger because I insist upon warning our people of a danger which so hangs over our heads that American planes fly in the air on 24 hours duty. They would not be up there guarding us if it were not essential. It does not matter what politicians and diplomats say; airmen and aircraft are in readiness with no minutes to lose or to spare.

It is a rainy day and the airmen sit about as they must do all the time. The klaxon blows and out they come in seconds and the big planes are ready to go up into the air immediately. Is this peace or fear? Is this readiness or drills? The politicians will not say and they have the last word, but no one engaged in this preparedness has any doubt as to what his job is. Any minute, he might get the word.

Every day I get letters telling me that "it is better to be a Red than dead." Is life so worth-while that one could sell himself into slavery just to be alive? Perhaps for some, life is very valuable and they would rather be Red than dead. What a wonderful slogan the Communists have devised. What an appeal such a slogan has to the animalistic instinct of self-preservation.

But has not civilization brought us to a higher level? Do we not ask what is worth-while and what is a noble ideal? Perhaps it is so awful to be dead that one would rather be a Red but those who ride the B-52s want to live, too. Only they want to live in freedom.

There I saw them stand in the rain in front of their aircraft, loving their ship as men love a home, telling me how they have worked together over the years, in war and in what is euphemistically called peace. Their hours are 24 a day and seven days a week and even when they go to bed they must be ready momentarily to answer the call of the klaxon. And among them there are really no generals and no privates for up in the air men are in teams and each man must make the team an unbreakable unit. For one weak link can bring them all down—and forever.

I am not saying where I was or what I saw—I only say that I came away with a sense of greater security because the real safety in this war is communications and in that field we excel. We can touch a button and all the world becomes alive in reply. And as one sees and hears, he wonders at those who still believe that the defense of Berlin is unnecessary and that we can ignore the imminence of war.

What we have, they probably have and what we know, they probably know. So it will be a matter of time, of no seconds to lose, of no minutes to throw away. The watchman at the gate may be an electric device but it is also a man, a man with a mind and soul, a man who could find remunerative outlets for his talents but who chooses to serve in this dangerous occupation that his people may be alive and free.

EN ROUTE FROM EUROPE...

One of the most effective instruments for the spread of America's ideals and its concepts of human brotherhood throughout the world is not being utilized by the United States government. There is plenty of emphasis on "cultural exchange" in the arts, music and drama, and lots of talk about the need for technical and educational help to be furnished by the new "Peace Corps" project. But there is a tendency to overlook a powerful institution in the world today — the churches and religious organizations.

The contract between the American government and the Roman Catholic headquarters in the Vatican is tenuous. There is little contact with the high-ranking ministers of the Church of England. There is little contact with the high churchmen of the Asian religions.

The other day, the correspondent in Rome of the London "Daily Telegraph" wrote to his paper that an attempt may be made soon to initiate diplomatic relations between the United States and the Vatican. This is probably a mistaken report, and the speculation may have arisen from the fact that Cardinal Cicognani, the newly appointed papal Secretary of State, is well acquainted in Washington, where he served 25 years—from 1933 to 1958—as the apostolic delegate to the Catholic clergy in America. From 1939 to 1950, Presidents Roosevelt and Truman maintained an unofficial representative — the late Myron C. Taylor — at the Vatican. These relationships were especially valuable during the war and post-war periods, and were thereafter lost in a controversy that arose when President Truman recommended establishment of formal diplomatic relations with the Vatican, and Congress refused to approve.

Since that time, the contact between the American government and the Vatican has been confined to a few visits by dignitaries on both sides. Yet the Roman Catholic Church has tremendous influence in every country in Latin America — each of which is predominantly Catholic in its religious affiliation — as well as in France, Austria, Germany, Spain and Italy. The Vatican could do no more to help the "alliance for progress" to succeed in Latin America than any other single ally.

What is needed is a special organization in the United States government devoted entirely to contacts with all national church and religious groups, both inside and outside the United States. A LOTTERY — A long-time pet of a segment of the public and Congress alike is a proposal to organize a federal lottery as a device to raise revenues.

Congressmen and Senators receive mail from all parts of the country urging passage of such a law to ease the mounting tax burden. But it remained for an Ohio Congressman, Rep. Thomas L. Ashley, to receive a plea in verse, and to reply in kind. The poetic appeal Ashley received ran:

"Get behind the bill that has been offered / Thus, at least, to keep us even / With the present situation / Of bankruptcy, staring at us / From each state and municipality."

Ashley replied: "You're probably right, it wouldn't hurt you, / Or be a blot on our country's virtue / But nothing short of happenstance / Can induce the Congress to take a special representative should be sent to Britain to maintain regular contacts with the clergy in the Church of England and with other Protestant church groups. Another envoy should be sent to Rome as a contact with the Roman Catholic Church. Other representatives of the United States government should go on similar missions to the centers of the middle eastern and Asian religions.

What could these American representatives do? Nearly every one of the big churches has a vast personnel of missionaries who serve all around the globe — Africa, Asia, South America. They chance. / And so, my friend, I'm sorry to say / Your national lottery is years away."

POLITICAL HANDS — Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, of New York, recently confessed to the Senate that he had once been fired from a job. Keating explained that, as a youth, he had taken a job on a farm to set cabbage. "The farmer I worked for had every reason to discharge me," Keating said, "because my hands did not move fast enough."

Obviously, the Senator has corrected this failing in the intervening years. He is still remembered for his 1958 election effort with Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, during which the two men teamed up to shake literally thousands of the voters' hands.

Keating's hands moved well enough — and fast enough — to get him elected to the highest legislative body in the land.

Malabsorption Syndrome Has Several Causes

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

The malabsorption syndrome is being written about more and more. It is not a disease but a group of signs and symptoms that occur when digestion or absorption of food from the small intestine is disturbed.

Most victims have diarrhea and become weak and pale; they lose weight and appetite. Other manifestations include muscle cramps, bleeding tendencies, scaling skin, puffiness of the tissues, and pain over bones.

Most of the ingested foods, vitamins, and minerals are digested and absorbed along the 23 feet of small intestine. It is here that the enzymes from the liver and pancreas mix with food coming from the stomach. A disease or blockage of the duct from these organs may cut off the supply of enzymes. This results in inadequate digestion of food, especially fats, which leads to diarrhea and undigested fats in the stool.

In other instances of malabsorption, food passes through the small intestine too fast or because the wall is abnormal and does not take in certain nutrients. The outcome is diarrhea with bulky, foamy stools. Other symptoms co-exist, depending upon the cause and what element or vitamin is not absorbed.

One middle-aged woman had suffered from diarrhea for years but paid no attention to it until her bones began to ache. She finally consulted a physician who found she was not absorbing a variety of components. But it was a deficiency of vitamin D, resulting in loss of calcium, that was making her bones soft and painful.

Another person waited until she developed black and blue spots and bleeding gums. This woman was not absorbing enough vitamin K to supply her liver with the necessary clotting materials and she had become a bleeder. Anemia stems from deficient absorption of iron and there is loss of strength and weight as the supply of proteins dwindles.

Malabsorption syndromes are not increasing but we are learning more about them all the time as more research tools become available.

TOMORROW: Infection of the outer ear.

HEART DISEASE D. R. writes: Is it safe for a person with heart disease to swim?

REPLY This is an individual problem. The person with angina pectoris, for example, should not swim if exertion or the shock of cold water brings on chest pain. Moderate swimming may be permitted if mild leakage is present.

BEE VENOM R. A. W. writes: I've tried everything for arthritis but nothing has helped. Someone recommended beehive. Do you know if it has any value?

Khrushchev Quotes Ike As Having Cherished Great Goal Of Peace

By Drew Pearson

GAGRI, Georgia, USSR — Nikita Khrushchev, relaxing under a Georgian sun on the shores of the placid Black Sea, told me first that he was "ready at any moment to meet the leaders of the Western world" on the Berlin crisis, that "solution of the problem permits no delay."

Second, he reminisced sympathetically about ex-President Eisenhower and I was surprised that he also had some kind words for John Foster Dulles.

The subject of Eisenhower came up after Mr. Khrushchev had discussed in considerable detail his determination to sign a peace treaty with East Germany, his proposal to guarantee West Germany's independence by a token force of Allied troops, and his concern over President Kennedy's Berlin position, which he said could lead to war.

"Eisenhower said to me at Camp David that there was one great thing which he and I might be able to do — bring peace to the world," Khrushchev reminisced. "I felt that he really meant this. I believed him and I still believe him."

"We were sitting across from each other at Camp David and he said 'my friend.' Then he asked the interpreter for a translation of 'my friend,' which in Russian is 'moi drug.' After that he called me 'moi drug' and I called him 'my friend.'"

"But I am afraid Eisenhower was not always his own master. He had those around him who were constantly trying to pull him in their direction. Before our summit meeting in Paris, his Undersecretary of State, Douglas Dillon, made a speech undermining the Paris meeting. Then Herter made a speech, which also hurt the conference. So it looked as if they were getting ready to torpedo the Paris conference."

"I still believe, however, that Eisenhower did not specifically authorize the U-2 flight at that very time. He had authorized the general pattern of flights, but I'm sure he would not have authorized that one."

Ike Suggested Apology

Discussing that famous Sunday in Paris when Prime Minister MacMillan of England and President de Gaulle of France went back and forth between Eisenhower in the American Embassy and Khrushchev in the Russian embassy, Khrushchev said:

"At our one meeting, when I asked for a statement of regret from Eisenhower he leaned over and we heard him whisper to Herter, 'I don't see why we couldn't do something like that.' But Herter said no."

"That was what ended the Camp David spirit and one of the great chances for better understanding between our two nations," said Mr. Khrushchev with a note of sadness.

"Averell Harriman said you were preparing a great reception for Eisenhower," I said.

"The greatest ever given to anyone," Khrushchev confirmed. "We will give a similar one to Kennedy if we can just get this Berlin problem solved. I told Kennedy that in Vienna."

I asked Khrushchev what had become of the hopes for a "new start toward peace" which looked promising after Kennedy's Inauguration with the release of the RD-47 fliers.

"We released those fliers with the definite hope for better relations and with the hope of helping Kennedy," he replied. "In the final stages of the American election, the State Department had asked us to release the fliers, but I could see that the effect would be to help Nixon and that he would tell the voters that he could best improve American-Russian relations."

"We did not want to hurt Kennedy, so we said 'no.' " "Naturally we didn't say we were for him publicly. Averell Harriman had warned us not to. He said 'If you chide Nixon, chide Kennedy a little too. It will help.'"

Dulles Shunned War

"What happened at Vienna to change things between you and the man you elected?" I asked.

"I'm not sure," Khrushchev replied. "I liked Kennedy. He talked frankly. He has a sense of humor. But when I told him we had to sign a peace treaty with Berlin he took a position worse than either Eisenhower or Dulles. 'I came to have admiration for Dulles before he died. He could disagree with you, but you knew exactly where he stood. And he did not want war. He would go up to the edge of war, or as he called it 'brinkmanship,' but he stopped before war."

"At one time we had some trouble with Dulles over Syria," Khrushchev explained. "We received intelligence that Turkey and Iraq were going to attack Syria, so we published the exact number of every division of the Turkish Army involved and warned Mr. Dulles that if the attack was made, we would intervene."

"The attack stopped dead in its tracks. That's what I liked about Mr. Dulles. He knew the facts of life and he did not want war. We hope Mr. Kennedy will take a leaf from the Dulles book."

Mr. Khrushchev talked of many other things affecting the USA and the peace of the world, during our peaceful afternoon on the edge of the Black Sea and more details will follow in an early column.

The Death Men

By John Crosby

GENEVA — The 336th meeting of the conference on the discontinuance of nuclear weapons tests is in order. Does any delegate wish to speak?" inquired Semyon Tsarapkin, head of the Russian delegation, generally known around Geneva as "Old Scratchy."

Those are the traditional words which open all the meetings. An hour and fifty minutes later, the meeting ended with a communique which has become almost as traditional as Christmas: "Discussion continued on the documents and proposals before the conference. The next meeting of the conference will be held at," etc.

So ended the 336th meeting of the longest international conference of modern times, which has stretched on for three long, long years. The Austrian peace treaty actually dragged out over ten years, but it wasn't one conference, rather many conferences held all over Europe and sometimes interrupted for years. The nuclear test ban conference, which affects the welfare and health of all of us on earth, started October 31, 1958, with five meetings a week and, now down to one meeting a week, has continued without interruption to the present day. Old Scratchy (Tsarapkin means "to scratch" in Russian) has been connected with the proceedings from the very beginning and may just stay until — if ever — they end. The American chief delegate, Arthur Dean, veteran of Panmunjom and other lengthy talks, was heard to mutter noisily after the 300th meeting that he would not be around for the 400th meeting.

Chances for agreement are even dimmer today than when they started and chances were not bright then. The positions of the two chief protagonists, the United States and Russia, have veered exactly 180 degrees in three years. Then the talks started, Russia seemed anxious for a test ban agreement, the U. S. reluctant. Today the U. S. is anxious, the U. S. S. R. (for reasons which can only be guessed at) is reluctant. In March, the Kennedy administration came to the conference with important concessions only to find the Russians had actually retreated from earlier agreements.

What in hell do people talk about after three years on the same subject? And what do they do with their time? I dropped around at the headquarters of the American mission here the other day to find Olin Whittemore, a young foreign service officer, browsing through miles of transcript, plucking out each reference Old Scratchy has made to "the one important obstacle" to agreement, implying that if this were out of the way, agreement would come in a matter of minutes.

However, over the years "the one important obstacle" has been many different things. "He has a very convenient memory," said Whittemore. He will hand these changes of line to the delegates as ammunition to hurl at Old Scratchy's head, which will ruffle the Russian not at all.

In another room, the delegation's science adviser, Dr. Warren Hockroote, a nuclear physicist, was reading "The Times" of London. "It's a very pleasant duty," he said of his six-month stint. "I sit at the table, mostly as window-dressing. I'm there to answer questions about neutron flux, about decoupling, about how deep nuclear devices have to be to escape detection. Actually, the delegates use me to confirm what they already know. They know an awful lot about nuclear testing."

Old Scratchy once called the conference a "dialogue between death men" and the dialogue has rarely flagged. Only twice in three years, when the chairmen asked: "Does any delegate wish to speak?" have the delegates not had anything to say. (Those meetings ended within three minutes.) David Mark, a United States foreign service officer who has been here for two years, said that since March the meetings had degenerated into "repetitive vituperation" but there is never any loss for that. "Last Monday the British purported to be outraged by something Old Scratchy said the week before. Next Monday we plan to be bland and unnoticeable—but by no means silent."

Though casual, even flippant about it, Mark is actually deeply disappointed in the turn the proceedings took in March. He had hoped and expected agreement would come with the considerable concessions made by the Kennedy administration. The personal hopes and despair of young career officers in these mighty and enormously complicated negotiations are very great and the frustrations leave a deep and permanent mark on the human spirit.

"The younger generation are the professional talkers," an old Geneva hand told me. "They keep the conferences going. The older ones, after a good lunch, they turn off their headlights, put on their dark glasses, and have a good sleep. The old ones enjoy the conference life and don't let the conference get them down. The younger generation are the dangerous ones. They meet a lunch and discuss things—issues, arguments, proposals. The older ones discuss the food at lunch which is the only sensible thing to discuss at lunch."

In the midst of the "dialogue between death men," life in Geneva goes on and life can be extraordinarily pleasant here. The sunshine sparkles on the magnificent lake. The flowers and trees that line Geneva's broad boulevards are lovely and the food is delicious. The per diem living is easy, certainly pleasanter than in the steamy jungles of Washington or New York where the American conferees would be if they weren't here. There is a certain vested interest among conferees in keeping conferences going.

In the three-year "dialogue between death men," one British conferee, Hugh Morgan, met and married a Swiss girl. They have had their first child and are expecting another. Mark and his wife expect their first child, too. These are known as conference babies and the deadlier the conference the more babies seem to proliferate.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

When Calvin Coolidge occupied the White House, he ducked reporters so consistently that one day they formed a conspiracy against him. Before a conference to which he reluctantly agreed, each one wrote out precisely the same question: "Are you going to run again in 1928?" Coolidge read each slip carefully, without comment or change of expression, then threw them all in the trash basket.

"Gentlemen," he said, "the only question in this lot I care to answer today concerns public schools in Puerto Rico." He then delivered a fifteen minute talk on the subject, full of statistics. The reporters never tried THAT trick on him again.

Two timid nuns stood waiting to cross Madison Avenue in the vicinity of St. Patrick's Cathedral.

The green light seemed to stay on forever, and the more impatient of the nuns proposed, "Let's make a dash for it."

"No, no," demurred the more prudent nun, "Let's wait for an empty space to come along."

Price Of W. Va. Auto Tags May Be Revised

Commissioner Wants Single Fee System

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Motor Vehicles Commissioner Jack Nuckols said Monday he would like to see a single fee charged for West Virginia Class-A automobile license plates.

The present regulations set up three fee classification for the plates, with the price based on the weight of a car. The fees are $20, $24 and $30.

Nuckols said a single charge would provide for more efficient operations by his department, plus allow for greater convenience to the public. "I presently plan to ask the Legislature for authority to make the change," he said.

Nuckols also said the State Building Commission has told him to go ahead and look for a possible new site to house his department.

The commissioner had long wanted to move the present operations from the State Office Building where it presently is located. The present location is inconvenient, not only to the public, but also for department operations, according to Nuckols.

Any new building, he said, should be located within three or four miles of the Statehouse. He also would like to have it built at an intersection of roads, so as to make the services more easily available.

Nuckols estimates the total cost of such a building, including both land purchase and construction costs, at $500,000. Financing could be carried out in several ways, but Nuckols has one plan that's his favorite.

He would like to see the Legislature authorize transfer of money from some state fund for construction of the proposed building. His department would reimburse the fund, along with interest, over a period of years.

Nuckols estimates it would take from 6 or 7 years to completely pay the money back to the fund.

Going back to single-fee charges for plates, Nuckols said such an operation would allow him to have "drive-in" windows at a new building for those buying new licenses.

"We could expedite the fee and plate application procedures within a few minutes with such 'Windows'," he said.

"I do not have any recommendations at this time as to what the fee should be," he said. "This would be a matter for the Legislature to decide on."

New Facility Is Located At Beckley, W. Va.

The new $350,000 Beckley Child Care Center, a significant achievement in development of new facilities by the West Virginia Methodist Conference, will be consecrated on Sunday, September 3.

Three buildings are ready for use, the first children having been admitted on Sunday, August 13. Children from 6 to 16 will be admitted, with the center working under the direction and guidance of the State Child Welfare Department.

A program beginning at 2 p. m. will include the consecration address by Bishop Fred G. Holloway, Charleston, resident Methodist bishop of the West Virginia Area.

Dr. J. B. F. Yoak Jr., pastor of Methodist Temple in Beckley, will present the buildings for consecration. He has been chairman of the building committee.

Others taking part in the service are Dr. U. E. Wills, Beckley District superintendent; Dr. James W. Witherspoon, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Beckley; Dr. J. M. Helm, Buckhannon, administrator of the home and executive director of the Conference Board of Hospital and Homes; and Rev. Virgil Cook, assistant administrator.

Opening of the center focuses attention on contributions from a number of sources which made the project possible, according to Mr. Helm.

The Beckley Chamber of Commerce gave the 60-acre site, valued at $60,000. People of the Beckley area pledged $187,000. Through its $2,500,000 "Faith In Action" program, the West Virginia Methodist Conference pledged $100,000. The conference board of Hospitals and Homes gave $50,000.

The consecration program will include selections by the choir of the First Methodist Church, Beckley. There will be open house at the center following the program.

Julie R. Hensil is social director of the board of hospital and homes, West Virginia Methodist Conference. He will make all investigations regarding children coming into the home.

Bloomington School Work Being Planned

BLOOMINGTON — Plans for an addition to Bloomington School will be completed within the next four to six weeks, in time for bidding by the end of this calendar year, according to the Garrett County Board of Education at Oakland.

The addition is to contain three classrooms and an all-purpose room. Originally, the addition was to include only two classrooms and the all-purpose room. The additional rooms will provide for seventh and eighth grade pupils who are now being transported to Bruce High School.

The addition is to be ready for use by September 1962. Wednesday, there will be a meeting of principals and supervisors of the Garrett county schools. Thursday, a meeting of all teachers is scheduled at Southern High School.

Schools will open September 5 at 9 a. m. for a full-day session.

PSC Continues Math Program

KEYSER—A mathematics sequence program will again be continued here this year by offering a course in analytical geometry (Math 5) at Potomac State College.

The announcement was made by the West Virginia University Extension Division which said an organizational meeting of all interested persons would be held on Thursday, September 7, at 7:30 (EDT) in Room 1 of the Administration Building on the campus.

Paul F. Iverson, head of the mathematics department at the college, will be instructor for the course which will carry four hours of credit.

The University requests that all interested persons make every effort possible to be at the meeting so the exact amount of interest in the program can be determined. Final registration will be scheduled and days set up for the class to meet.

New Plant Will Open At Keyser

KEYSER—A new branch plant of the Aero Geo Astro Corporation, Alexandria, Va., electronics firm, will be opened here approximately September 15, it was announced today by Thomas B. Mechling, executive vice president of the company.

The new Keyser plant, of 8,000 square-foot capacity, will be devoted to "research and development for the nation's defense and space programs."

"This new plant is being placed in the center of an area suffering from severe unemployment problems. The location of this AGA branch in Keyser is in direct response to President Kennedy's appeal for aid to distressed areas. It will utilize the skilled labor available in the community," Mechling stated.

The Aero Geo Astro Corporation currently operates branches in College Park, Md., Corona, Calif., Arlington, Texas, and Fort Walton Beach, Fla. AGA's new $1 million plant in Alexandria will be completed in mid-October, and laboratory and other operations now being conducted in seven locations in the city will be consolidated in the new structure.

Two Garrett Girls Join Army Nurses

OAKLAND—The enlistment of two Garrett County women in the Army Nurse Corps occurred during the past week.

Miss Inez D. Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Davis, Oakland, and Miss Rita Buckel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Buckel, Bittering, enlisted as second lieutenants. They left for Gunter Air Force Base, Montgomery, Ala., where they will be stationed for three weeks' orientation.

From there they will go to Fort Worth, Texas, to be stationed. Both are registered nurses, formerly with Memorial Hospital in Cumberland.

Pollution Problem Cited In Deep Creek Lake Study

OAKLAND—A study of sewage disposal problems on Deep Creek Lake has revealed the presence of small amounts of sewage materials in the waters at a number of locations.

The report was made by Dr. Arthur F. Jones, county health officer, and followed a study conducted by Richard A. Johnson, student at Johns Hopkins Medical School. Johnson worked this summer under the direction of local and state health officers.

Although it was pointed out that there is no health hazard present at this time, Johnson believes that if not controlled the problem could become more serious.

He stated that lake property owners should become familiar with the requirements for proper septic tank systems since this is apparently the source of most of the trouble.

Dr. Jones said systems which are draining to the surface or working poorly should be reconstructed in a proper manner. "Before beginning construction of new dwellings," he said, "percolation tests should be performed to be sure that proper soil conditions for septic tank systems are present."

In order to insure pure lake water, Johnson urged property owners to consult with the Garrett County Health Department before remodeling old septic tank system or constructing new ones.

Dr. Jones said interested persons may examine the full report by contacting his office.

Mckenzie Gets

Year Sentence

Albert Wayne McKenzie, 23, of Finzel, yesterday was sentenced to one year in the Maryland House of Correction after being convicted of attempted jail escape in Allegany County Circuit Court.
Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris sentenced the man after he entered a plea of guilty to the charge.
The defendant was represented by Earl E. Manges while Donald W.
Mason, assistant state's attorney, presented the state's case.
McKenzie, who was serving a 90-day term for a motor vehicle violation, was charged with attempting to escape jail after he sawed several bars in his cell on July 28.
Sheriff Paul C. Haberlein foiled the attempt break after he watched McKenzie work about five minutes sawing the bars.
McKenzie has been involved in several "problems" since being confined to the county lockup in June.
Last weekend he was removed to Sacred Heart Hospital for emergency treatment after he cu-
double-edge razor blade.
He was discovered Friday lying on the floor of his cell by another prisoner. He lost a considerable amount of blood, Sheriff Haberlein said.
A Bible and religious magazine were also found in McKenzie's cell. Several religious paintings were on the wall and Sheriff
Haberlein said he believed Mc-Kenzie had painted them.

THE CENTENNIAL SCRAPBOOK

The War for the Union 1861-65 in Pictures

No. 49 Division of the country in 1861 did not follow any religious lines. Both sides had Roman Catholics and Jews, as well as Protestants, among the fighting men and their supporters. The military chaplains included priests and rabbis (for the first time).The original attorney-general of the Confederate government was Judah P. Benjamin, who was born in St. Croix, Danish West Indies (now Virgin Isles), while his English Jewish parents were in transit to the South. They settled in North Carolina, where Judah proved himself no Philistine.

A vari-talented prodigy, he was able to enter Yale at age 14.After three years at New Haven, he took up study of law in New Orleans and qualified for the bar the day he was 21. He taught school, too, until his success as attorney made him a much sought counsel and an influential figure in Louisiana politics. He
all his life and wrote extensively for publication.Chosen a U. S. senator when 41, Benjamin was in his second term in Washington when Louisiana seceded in 1861.
Benjamin immediately resigned, took part in the organization of the new Confederate government at Montgomery, and was one of thefirst choices for President Davis' Cabinet.
In August 1861, the month of Benjamin's 50th birthday, Davis moved him into the War Department secretariatship, in place of Leroy P. Walker. This proved a mistake, for the wide learning Benjamin had cultivated did not include the fundamentals or realities of military craft. One of his arbitrary bureaucratic decisions incited the Con-federacy's greatest tactician, Gen. "Stonewall" Jackson, to try to resign in 1862.After saving the faces of both Jackson and Benjamin, President Davis made Benjamin his secretary of State, in place of R. M. T.
Hunter. In that post Benjamin was declared by contemporaries to be the chief power in the Confederate government after Davis and Mrs. Davis.
(Confederate diplomacy and relations abroad will be a subject here later.)In the flight of the Confederate Cabinet from Richmond in April 1865, the secretary of State separated from the Davis party, reached Florida, and got on a boat to the Bahamas. Reaching England, Benjamin took up law practice anew and qualified as a queen's counsel in 1872. He had accumulated a fortune when he retired in 1883 to live in Paris with his wife and daughter. He died there the next year.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

It's such a lovely day—let's not spoil it by going on a picnic.

Rocky Gap Park In This County Will Be Pushed

$100,000 Sought In 1962 For Land

A concerted effort to get favorable action on a $100,000 appropriation next year to purchase land for the proposed 2,200 acre Rocky Gap State Park in Allegany County was promised at a luncheon meeting yesterday at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club attended by some 50 public officials and interested citizens.

Among those attending the meeting sponsored by the Route 40 Association were some of the members of the State Commission of Forests and Parks and some of those serving on a special commission appointed by Governor J. Millard Tawes to prepare a master plan for state parks to be submitted to the Legislative Council by October 1.

State Senator Charles M. See, who is a member of this special master plan commission, was the first speaker to discuss the need for the Rocky Gap State Park, which would be located west of the Pleasant Valley Road but east of the crest of Evitts Mountain a few miles east of Cumberland. Marylanders At Cacapon

Senator See told the audience that a few weeks ago he visited the Cacapon State Park near Berkeley Springs in West Virginia and found that a large percentage of those in the park were Marylanders from such places as Baltimore, Annapolis, suburban Washington and other points.

If Western Maryland had such an attraction, as is planned in the Rocky Gap development, most of those Marylanders would stay in their own state and spend their money in this area.

A further explanation concerning the Rocky Gap development was provided by Joseph F. Kaylor, director of the State Department of Forests and Parks. He said State Forester H. C. Buckingham had suggested this area north of U. S. Route 40 and south of the Mason-Dixon Line for a state park site.

In acquiring land for the proposed park, Mr. Kaylor stressed the necessity of obtaining enough area on the borders of the park to protect the park itself from encroachment. Between 200 and 300 acres can be developed into a lake by damming the stream which runs through the area toward Evitts Creek.

The state director of forests and parks pointed out that the existing state parks in Maryland were equipped to handle an annual attendance of about 1,500,000. Yet about 4,500,000 now use the facilities each year.

State parks are community assets which help attract new industry and business to an area, the director added.

Mr. Kaylor pointed out that it will be at least 18 months before the state will be able to purchase land for the Rocky Gap development. The request for the $100,000 appropriation needs the endorsement of the State Planning Commission and Governor J. Millard Tawes. If they are received and the appropriation for capital improvements is approved by the General Assembly at its 1962 session, the funds still will not be available until the fiscal year which starts July 1, 1962.

Other speakers included William A. Parr, superintendent of state parks; R. Brooke Maxwell, chairman of the State Commission of Forests and Parks, and Alvin H. Wilson of Cumberland, a member of the State Commission of Economic Development.

Aid Industry

Mr. Wilson, who has studied the Rocky Gap area in great detail, yesterday emphasized that he was interested in the state park development as a means of attracting new industry and expansion of existing industries in Western Maryland.

Edward Habebe, president of the Route 40 Association, presided at the meeting. He called upon one of the most active members of the association, John L. Towler, to introduce the guests.

Members of the State Commission of Forests and Parks at yesterday's meeting here besides Mr. Maxwell included Arthur K. Spicer of Church Creek in Dorchester County; Willis T. Hancock of Snow Hill in Worcester County and Austin Renn of Frederick, the newest member.

The special master plan commission was represented by Mr. Kaylor, Senator See, Senator Bernard J. Gonder of Garrett County and two Baltimore men, S. L. Hammerman and Morris A. Mechanic.

Five of the six members of the House of Delegates from Allegany County attended the luncheon yesterday and promised their support.

W. Va. Delegate Seeks Rule On Snake-Handling

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The state attorney general's office was asked Monday to rule on whether outlawing snake-handling by religious groups in West Virginia would infringe on the constitutional guarantee of freedom of religion.

Del. J. C. Cruikshank, D-Clay, who asked for the opinion, said the use of snakes in a religious ceremony "was an affront to civilization."

If a favorable opinion is given, Cruikshank said he would introduce a bill to make such practices illegal.

commission, and State Senator Charles M. See of Allegany County, also a member of the master plan study group. Standing, same order, are S. L. Hammerman of Baltimore, Morris A. Mechanic, also of Baltimore, both members of the master plan group; William A. Parr, superintendent of state parks; R. Brooke Maxwell, also of Baltimore, chairman of the State Commission of Forests and Parks, and State Senator Bernard J. Gonder of Garrett County, also a member of the master plan study.

Conservation Supervisors Congratulated

SCS Unit Sponsored State Meetings

Allegany County Soil District Supervisors have received quite a few letters from members of Maryland Association of Soil Conservation Districts and State Soil Committee complimenting them on the successful summer meeting of the groups held here in July.

The letters were read at the regular meeting of district supervisors at the county agent's office in the Court House. All county supervisors attended the meeting at which Wilbert Paul, Mt. Savage, chairman presided.

A new district supervisor will be getting assistance from SCS, according to the monthly report of Martin M. Gordon, work unit supervisor. S. Bryan Stinson, Flintstone, who has 139 acres on the east side of Polish Mountain, is interested in wildlife improvement and a farm pond.

Also reported were basic plans developed with Alvin Wilson, Pea Vine Run Road, 227 acres; John P. Knieriem, Willowbrook Road, 25 acres; Marshall Tewell, Williams Road, 100 acres, and C. E. Sinclair, Warrior Mountain 343 acres; a revised plan for J. Paul Andrick, Town Hill, 247 acres, and work on 800 feet of open ditch at the Knieriem farm.

Drain tile was installed on farms of Albert Kinser, Wilbur Crabtree and E. K. McLaughlin, all of Oldtown; Glen Savage Dairy and Wilbert Paul, Mt. Savage, and Ralph J. Lybarger, Ellerslie.

Contour strips were laid out for William Moore on the eight acre Geary farm.

Kenneth M. Stone, soil scientist, reported he completed 700 acres of partial soil survey and 200 acres remapping for Garrett County and 300 acres remapping for Allegany County.

Council Invited

To Hear Speech

The Chamber of Commerce and the Retail Merchants Association yesterday invited the Mayor and Council to hear William G. Barr, executive director of the National Parking Association, speak here Wednesday about parking.

Mr. Barr's speech will be delivered at a dinner meeting at 6:30 p. m. in Central YMCA.

W. Va. Delegate Seeks Rule On Snake-Handling

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The state attorney general's office was asked Monday to rule on whether outlawing snake-handling by religious groups in West Virginia would infringe on the constitutional guarantee of freedom of religion.

Del. J. C. Cruikshank, D-Clay, who asked for the opinion, said the use of snakes in a religious ceremony "was an affront to civilization."

If a favorable opinion is given, Cruikshank said he would introduce a bill to make such practices illegal.

Meeting Today On Dangerous Rt. 135 Curve

Tri-Towns Group To Discuss Safety

A meeting will be held tonight in Piedmont to discuss what steps may be taken to help prevent any more fatal accidents at the foot of Backbone Mountain at Bloomington.

The meeting, which has been called by the Roads Committee of the Tri-Town Community Council, will be held at 7:30 p. m. in the Piedmont council chamber. Mrs. Arthur Hartman is chairman of the committee.

Those expected to attend tonight's meeting are representatives of the State Roads Commission from Baltimore; Ormal Hoover, chairman of the roads committee of the Tri-Towns Lions Club; Mayor Donald Mellor, of Piedmont; Dr. Neil Williams, a member of the town council of Westernport; Harris LeFevre, assistant public relations director of the Luke mill of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company, and a member of the Bloomington Town Council.

Three serious tractor-trailer truck accidents have occurred at the foot of the mountain during the past year in which four persons were killed.

Those who have called the meeting said it is not a protest meeting, but one to see what steps may be taken to help prevent any more fatal accidents at the dangerous curve.

Recently another group, the Improved Order of Redmen of Westernport, appealed to Governor J. Millard Tawes for action to help alleviate the dangerous situation.

The Redmen organization suggested several large signs be erected on the mountain to alert truck drivers of the dangerous curve at the foot of the mountain. The group also recommended several "runways" off the highway in case drivers were forced to ditch their rigs.

Mrs. Frances A. Elliott, 34-year-old Barton area woman, has been released from the County Jail on $500 bond in the shooting of her husband on August 17.

Mrs. Elliott was arrested on an open charge in connection with the shooting of her husband, Warren R. Elliott, 36, during an altercation at their home.

Mr. Elliott is reported in "good" condition at Memorial Hospital, where he was admitted with a 22 calibre bullet wound in the back.

Authorities said no charges have been placed against Mrs. Elliott pending the outcome of her husband's injuries.

Mrs. Elliott allegedly shot her husband while he was fighting with Gene Llewellyn, 22, also of the Barton area.

The shooting is being investigated by County Investigator Edwin R. Liya and Tfc. Robert C. Dishong of the State Police.

Comptroller Order Slated Next Week

Formal Action Is Requested

An order for the appointment of a comptroller for the City of Cumberland is expected to be introduced next Tuesday as a result of a discussion held at yesterday's meeting of the Mayor and Council.

The appointment has been under consideration since July 31, when the Civil Service Commission submitted a list of eligibles for the position. Listed were Albert J. Lawler and Paul E. Rodecap.

The subject was brought up yesterday by Police and Fire Commissioner Philmore Fleming, who said he had been asked a hundred times about the status of the position.

Mrs. Lucile Roeder, finance commissioner, said she had her recommendation ready and gave it several weeks ago downstairs.

She said her recommendation was the result of eight months of work and suggested that either her recommendation be accepted or Council take the responsibility.

Mayor J. Edwin Keesh suggested that Mrs. Roeder prepare an order for Council to consider.

Mr. Fleming said he felt that something should be done next Tuesday, and Street Commissioner John J. Long added he thought the issue should be brought to an end, one way or the other.

Mrs. Roeder asked Council if it wanted her recommendation again, that she would be glad to give it.

The exchange closed with Mr. Fleming suggesting that an order be prepared for Monday.

Arthur B. Gibson, city comptroller, officially retired from the position on July 31 but agreed to serve as comptroller without pay from August 1 to October 31, and to serve as financial consultant to the city during the period at a fee of $1,875.

The Cumberland Contracting Company is expected to complete the resurfacing of Sedgwick Street today.

The company yesterday began work on Tilghman Street and applied the first and part of the final course. Crews are expected to complete the street by 10 a. m. and then move to Sedgwick.

Scheduled Wednesday is the application of a smooth-seal surface to School Street.

The company is doing the work on an experimental basis at no additional cost to the city.

The surfacing is applied at the rate of 70 pounds to the square yard, which gives a compacted thickness of about 1/4 of an inch. It closely resembles the sheet asphalt used in some cities.

Rusk Predicts Berlin Talks

Bonn Urges Quick Move For Parley

Brentano Says Allies Will Soon Ask Conference

BERLIN (AP)—West Germany put the heat on the Western Big Three powers Monday for a quick move toward a conference with the Soviet Union on the Berlin crisis. There was quiet on the East-West dividing line in Berlin, but no sense of peace.

With policy formation a continuing subject of Allied consultations in Washington, Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano announced in Bonn that the Western powers in the next few days will demand talks with Moscow.

Brentano said such talks are needed to make clear the positions of both sides before the East Germans' blockade of Berlin develops into a catastrophe and it should be on the foreign minister level.

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer also took a hand. West German government sources said he wants the West to take the initiative in starting negotiations, and gave instructions to this effect to Wilhelm Grewe, West German ambassador to the United States.

Rusk Expects Negotiations

U. S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk said in New York there will be negotiations with the Soviet Union on the Berlin crisis. He said it is possible but not likely that negotiations will take place before the Sept. 19 opening of the U. N. General Assembly.

Rusk said the time, place and circumstances still are under discussion.

He also said Soviet Premier Khrushchev knows the West will not be pushed out of Berlin.

In his Bonn announcement, Brentano hinted that differences between France and the other Western powers about the advisability of an immediate conference no longer exist. He suggested the meeting could be held either before or after the Sept. 17 West German election and the Sept. 19 opening of the U. N. General Assembly.

Sealed Border Quiet

Quiet settled Monday night on the sealed-off sector border in Berlin, but the Western Allies refused to be trapped into a false sense of security and maintained their troops and armor on alert.

For the second straight day, the East Germans manned their barricades with only pistol-toting police.

The only break in the calm came in the British sector along the Spandauer Schiffsahrts Canal. East Berlin police there fired several rounds toward some workmen who were repairing a street. The shots evidently were intended only to intimidate. A British armored car raced up and the police desisted.

Aside from this sort of thing, it appeared to Western sources as though the East Germans have gone as far as their orders permit and now are sitting back, awaiting big power negotiations. Khrushchev has said these "must" be held on Germany and Berlin by the end of this year.

Stop Meddling, Japan Leader Tells Khrush

TOKYO (AP)—Japan does not intend to be pried loose from its alliance with the United States and its associations with the free world, Prime Minister Hayato Ikeda declared Monday in a letter to Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

The Japanese prime minister answered a personal message from Khrushchev, delivered by Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan during a nine-day visit to Japan.

The Ikeda letter reflected this government's ruffled feelings at blunt attacks by Khrushchev and Mikoyan on the U.S.-Japanese security pact.

Ikeda said the treaty is "purely defensive" and to "a country which has no intention of threatening the security of another country, obviously there should be no reason to say that this treaty is a threat," Ikeda wrote.

Soviet attacks on the pact are "totally beyond the comprehension of the people of Japan," he added, and are a meddling in Japan's affairs.

He told Khrushchev that if he wants a peace treaty with Japan, all he has to do is return to Japan "territories which are integrally hers," meaning the Soviet-held southern Kurile Islands.

As to Japan's relations with the West, Ikeda said, "Japan pursues freedom and democracy as the highest political ideals. This is and will continue to be our immutable policy."

Japan does not hesitate to establish amicable relations with countries of different political ideology, he continued, but such countries must "strictly observe at all times the principles of peaceful settlement of disputes, nonresort to threats of force, and absolute noninterference in the domestic affairs of other countries."

Soviet Charges Foreign Subs Prowl Its Shores

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union charged Monday night that foreign submarines have been sneaking close to its shores on underwater patrols and warned that future intruders will be destroyed.

A formal statement by the Soviet news agency Tass said did not identify the nationality of the submarines, but claimed they had been in Soviet territorial waters while in Soviet territorial waters.

The statement presumably has the full authority of the Soviet government.

"In conformity with international law and according to the legislation of the Soviet Union, foreign submarines can enter Soviet territorial waters only by

Negro 'Arsenal' Raided But No Guns Are Found

MONROE, N. C. (UPI)—Police and state troopers, determined to prevent further race rioting in this tense city, raided the stronghold of a Negro integration splinter group Monday.

Law officers holding shotguns and tear gas guns at the ready descended on the headquarters of Negro leader Robert Williams, which officers had described as an armed camp, but found both guns and Williams gone.

State police immediately asked the FBI to issue an alarm for Williams who is charged with kidnapping a white couple and holding them hostage during Sunday night's rioting.

Tourist Lost In Alaska Two Months Found

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP)—A Kentucky tourist lost more than two months in the Alaska wilderness was brought out Sunday, emaciated and weak but expected to recover.

William Waters, 42, Erlanger, Ky., lost more than 90 pounds during the ordeal and weighed only about 100 pounds when he was hospitalized here.

Attendants said Monday his condition was fair. State Police Lt. Bill Trafton, who flew Waters to Fairbanks, described him as being "in surprisingly good shape, everything considered."

Two hunters reportedly found the Kentucky man about 70 miles from where he was last seen June 10 near Circle Hot Springs, about 120 miles northeast of here.

Waters' car was found parked on the highway, and others in the area said he had planned to walk in to a lake a few miles away.

A search for him was fruitless and was abandoned some time ago.

Waters was reported to have driven to this 49th state alone.

Sports Service Tension Easer, Operator Says

WASHINGTON (AP)—A sports service operator told Senate gambling investigators Monday that his clients pay him up to $50 a day for the relief of acute "tension and anxiety" about the outcome of horse races.

Albert Tollin, 30, partner and general manager of the Delaware Sports Service, testified his race track flashes are available only to professional bettors who place legitimate wagers.

He insisted repeatedly that he does not provide service to illegal bookmaking establishments. In fact, Tollin said he would shut off his service to anyone who turned out to be a bookmaker.

He has never had to do that, he said.

Tollin conceded, at a hearing of the Senate Investigations subcommittee, that some of his customers are known to him only as Jo Jo, Biff, and Charlie Eye.

"When someone calls you for information," asked Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., "and says 'This is Jo Jo; don't you inquire Jo Jo who?'"

"No, sir," Tollin replied. Tollin said he has only one overriding interest in his clients—to see that they pay in advance.

When Chairman John L. McClellan, D-Ark., asked if bookmakers did not comprise his clientele, Tollin replied: "Not at the prices I charge."

He said he charges $20 for the winner of one race, $30 for two races, and $50 for five results—the most he will distribute to any one person.

Tollin said he flashes the unofficial results of horse races all over the country from a three-story building in Wilmington, Del. He said his sports service can receive about 30 telephone calls at a time, although there are 100 telephone lines running into the building.

Tollin said he disagrees with a statement made by his father, Joseph Tollin, at a District of Columbia Public Utilities Committee hearing several years ago. The elder Tollin said, "Our service would have probably no value except to a bookmaker."

To the Senate group, the younger Tollin said: "I can honestly state it (the service) is a necessity for the professional bettor, but for a bookmaker it is of no value."

"I claim I do not service bookmakers," he repeated.

Asked how his clients place the bets that worry them so much, Tollin said he assumes they place them through friends who visit the race tracks.

Three Moslems Slain In Algerian Rioting

Katanga Boss Yields To U.N. Task Force

Dozens Of White Military Officers Swept From Army

ELISABETHVILLE, Katanga, the Congo (AP)—The U. N. Congo Command swept white officers from Katanga's army Monday in a military operation apparently aimed at helping this secessionist province back under the rule of Leopoldville.

Dozens of Belgian, French, British and other white military men commanding the Negro troops of Katanga President Moise Tshombe were arrested under conditions resembling a state of siege.

Then Tshombe capitulated. He announced he would release all the foreign officers from their duties. They include some who hid out and refused to surrender. Plans were formulated for a peaceful evacuation.

A task force of Swedish and Indian troops commanded by Indian Brig. Singappa Raja struck Elisabethville, the capital, at dawn.

Key Operations Seized

They seized the airport, post office, telephone exchange and radio station and raided army headquarters. Guards were posted at hospitals. Aside from press dispatches, communications with the outside world were cut off. Armored cars roved the streets.

Minor clashes marked the occupation. Windows and doors were wrecked at the post office, where a company of Indians refused to allow Katangans even to collect their mail. A door at army headquarters was broken down.

Troops threw out an African reporter who tried to enter the radio station.

Conor Cruise O'Brien, U.N. representative in Katanga, reported "a few shots were fired, but nobody was hurt."

The interior minister, Godefroid Munongo, a strong man of Tshombe's regime, was placed under house arrest for a while.

Internal Security Action

Cheered by Katangans, Tshombe made a tour of the city and urged the people to keep at their jobs and remain calm.

Raja reported 68 arrests in the first six hours of the operation against the 312 European and other white men on the payroll of the Katanga regime.

U. N. spokesman Michel Tomblaine described the operation as intended to preserve internal security. Congo President Joseph Kasavubu had called on the United Nations to get rid of the foreign officers, chiefly Belgian, still serving in defiance of a U. N. Security Council resolution calling for their withdrawal.

Auto Big Three Standing Firm

DETROIT (AP)—The Big Three carmakers stood firm Monday on their original offers in the face of the United Auto Workers' threats of strike action in event new labor contract settlements are not reached by a Thursday midnight deadline. That's when present three-year contracts run out.

The union agreed on a profit-sharing pact with American Motors Corp. Saturday. It then said General Motors, Ford and Chrysler will have to match or improve upon the AMC settlement.

Big Three spokesmen reasserted Monday their opposition to profit-sharing. They said they are not preparing any new offers.

The Big Three companies insist production workers have shared in industry's progress over the years through wage increases that have brought the average hourly wage to $2.80 and added fringe benefits worth 35 to 40 cents an hour.

A union spokesman said Monday the UAW will not necessarily insist on a profit-sharing settlement with the Big Three.

Coming from a bargaining session with Ford Motor Co. negotiators, UAW Vice President Ken Bannan said, "We told them, 'If you don't want to travel the profit-sharing road, just put up the money for the benefits and take them out of the profits.'"

Brazil Military Chieftains Say 'No' To Goulart

Decree Sets Off Bitter Dispute As Crisis Mounts

ABDUCTED—Mrs. G. Bruce Stegall, of Marshville, N. C., tells reporters of the experience she and her husband had Sunday night when they were whisked away by a group of Negroes. Mrs. Stegall said the Negroes tied her to a chair and her husband to a stool. They were released three and one-half hours later. Both testified before a grand jury yesterday. (AP Photofax)

Labor Deputy Elói Dutra shouted that he would resign rather than become "part of a democracy tutored by machine guns."

New Elections Hinted

Mazzilli hinted at new elections. He mentioned in his announcement that he would not be a candidate to succeed Quadros.

As head of the Chamber of Deputies, Mazzilli became acting president Friday when Quadros resigned. Goulart was in the Far East after a friendship trip to Communist China.

Under the constitution, elections must be held in 60 days when both presidency and vice presidency are vacant.

Mazzilli's announcement was not broadcast in Brazil, where strict censorship prevailed. Thus few citizens of Rio de Janeiro knew of the military's formal turnaround of Goulart.

A crowd of about 500 demonstrators massed in the heart of the city Monday night but was broken up by police hurling tear gas bombs and firing shots in the air. Several persons were arrested.

At about the time the ministers of war, navy and air force were informing Congress of their decision to bar Goulart for security reasons, the wealthy left-leaning vice president was stoutly asserting in Paris his constitutional right to the presidency.

There was no immediate hint from any source as to what now may take place to break the deadlock.

Goulart Issues Statement

While political leaders struggled to find a way out of the impasse produced by fears of Goulart's pronounced leftist views, Brazilians sweated under a bank holiday, alert military and police patrols, strike threats, and a fear of strife.

Goulart, 42, who was elected vice president last year, issued his statement to reporters in Paris. It was his first since President Quadros startled the nation last Friday by resigning the office.

Goulart was en route home from Peiping, where he praised Red China's boss, Mao Tse-tung.

"Under the constitutional rules of my country I consider myself the new president of Brazil," he declared. "I am in direct contact with Rio de Janeiro. I am waiting the arrival here of a delegation of Brazilian Parliament members. I think that a solution is approaching and in any case I will act in the best interests of my country."

Aides and friends of Goulart said he is firmly determined to return to Brazil to take office.

Met And Its Musicians Get In Tune, Save Opera

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Metropolitan Opera and its musicians settled their wage dispute Monday by agreeing to accept whatever terms Labor Secretary Arthur J. Goldberg lays down.

The settlement assured that the opera will go on as scheduled during the 1961-62 season.

Sources close to Goldberg said the general manager of the opera indicated privately that enough performing artists would be available to make it possible to perform this season.

The sources also said the parties involved, not Goldberg, suggested the binding arbitration.

Goldberg announced the agreement after a 5½-hour conference with representatives of both sides who came to the Labor Department from New York at his invitation.

Time, Place Still Under Discussion

West Might Take Problem To U.N. If Crisis Deepens

NEW YORK (UPI)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk said flatly Monday that the West will hold negotiations with Russia on the Berlin crisis. He indicated that if the Communists make the situation worse the West might take the problem to the United Nations.

Rusk, who met for more than two hours here Monday with U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld and U. S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson, said "the exact timing, place and circumstances" of the East-West Berlin talks were yet to be worked out.

He told a news conference at the Waldorf Astoria hotel that it was "possible but not likely" that the negotiations could get underway before the U. N. General Assembly session opens Sept. 19.

May Go To U.N.

"Certainly if the crisis deepens and becomes worse we can expect it to go before the United Nations," he said, adding that the world organization then might be expected "to suggest that the parties concerned negotiate."

But he observed: "I suppose negotiations would precede any U. N. move."

Rusk said his prediction of negotiations on the smouldering crisis did not imply that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev had already agreed to talks on Berlin.

But he said such an East-West confrontation was "inherent" in a situation where proposals have been made by either side.

"I think Khrushchev knows that we will not be pushed out of Berlin," Rusk declared. "... It is too serious to leave the situation in the hands of a PFC (private first class) at the border."

Reports Brushed Aside

The state secretary brushed aside reports that President Charles de Gaulle of France was balking at U.S.-British moves to take the initiative in setting up negotiations with the Kremlin.

"Discussions among the (Western) foreign ministers are now going on and will continue. We are not out of contact with the Russians on this," he said.

"There will be negotiations. It is possible but not likely that they will be before the U. N. meeting. The exact timing, place and circumstances are something that is being discussed at the present time."

Rusk said he did not expect that the East-West meeting would be limited to the subject of Berlin.

"The Russian proposals have to do with Germany and Central Europe as well," he said.

Senate Passes Air Piracy Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate passed and sent to the White House Monday a bill that would create a new class of crime—air piracy—and make it a federal offense punishable by death.

The bill, prompted by a recent outbreak of hijackings of commercial airliners, was approved by a voice vote. It was passed by the House, 373-5, last week.

The bill would give a jury or a judge the discretion of whether to impose the death penalty on persons convicted of forcible seizure or attempted seizure of an airplane. It provided an alternate penalty of 20 years to life in prison.

The bill also would impose penalties ranging up to $10,000 fine and 20 years in prison for unarmed assault or threats on flight crew members, including stewardesses. The same crime involving use of deadly weapons would be punishable by imprisonment from 20 years to life. The death penalty, however, would not be applicable in these cases.

80 Peace Corpsmen Greeted By Kennedy

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy gave the first Peace Corps volunteers scheduled for overseas assignment a personal sendoff Monday and said their influence may be far reaching.

Kennedy said the volunteers' willingness to forego personal gain to work in underdeveloped nations "should make all Americans proud and make them all appreciative."

The President greeted the 80 volunteers in a brief ceremony in the White House rose garden.

The delegation was made up of men and women to be assigned to Ghana and Tanganyika.

Rejuvenated Regime

Algeria Rebels Promise France Tougher Time

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP)—Algeria's rebel government, rejuvenated by a victory of its revolutionary wing over the moderates, promised a tougher time on the battlefield and at the negotiating table.

Internationally, it showed it would keep its distance from the West and pursue a neutralist line in the cold war. But it promised to mobilize "the maximum of material, political and diplomatic support so as to weaken the international position of French colonialism."

A statement Monday from headquarters of the reshuffled Algerian provisional government here reported on the month-long meeting at Tripoli, Libya, of the National Council of the Algerian revolution which decided Sunday's Cabinet changes. This, the main policy-making body of the rebellion, is composed largely of men who are actually doing the fighting in Algeria.

It decided to drop Ferhat Abbas, 62, the bourgeois revolutionary who has been political head of its movement since 1958. In his place as premier, it installed Youssef ben Khedda, 41, a man much further to the left.

The finance minister, Ahmed Francis, and the social affairs minister, Abdelhamid Mehri, other moderates who backed Abbas in agreeing to peace talks with France, were dropped too. In came young leaders who have been with the rebellion since it started in 1954.

Monday's statement said the Tripoli meeting's decisions "dealt principally with the reinforcement of the action of the National Liberation Army and the mobilization of the Algerian masses" and "reaffirmed that a solution is possible within the fundamental principles safeguarding the integrity of the Algerian territory, including the Sahara." Peace talks twice have broken down on the issue of whether the oil-rich Sahara is to be French or Algerian.

Pressman Hits Tax Boost Talk

BALTIMORE (AP)—Hyman A. Pressman, self-appointed watchdog of state spending, Monday challenged a prediction by Maryland's chief fiscal adviser that a tax increase in 1963 seems inevitable.

Pressman, a Baltimore attorney, took issue with a weekend remark by John S. Shriver, director of the Fiscal Research Bureau. Shriver said Maryland is "right back in the hole" despite a major tax increase in 1963.

Shriver told the State Association of County Commissioners that the cost of government is creeping up faster than the personal income on which state revenue depends. He said an adjustment in taxes to restore the balance will be necessary by 1963.

Pressman claimed Shriver's remarks contradict the comptroller's report of a $17.5 million surplus as of June 30, 1961. He said state officials are predicting a surplus of $6 million by next June and such predictions are "consistently pessimistic."

West Proposes Talks On Total Atom Test Ban

GENEVA (AP)—The United States and Britain proposed for the first time Monday negotiation of a total ban on all nuclear tests, including the smallest tactical atomic weapons.

The offer was hinged on Soviet acceptance of a substantially stronger control system than previously envisaged. This alone made it appear doomed to failure.

Soviet delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin immediately tossed his usual dash of cold water on the Western move, calling it a mere technical measure which contains nothing new and which in any case is unrealistic "while arms and military preparedness are being increased throughout the world."

"It is impossible to continue the negotiations without paying attention to the developments of international life," Tsarapkin added, presumably in an oblique reference to the tension over Berlin.

The East-West deadlock remained total at the end of the 90-minute session, 337th in the long series. It was the opening of a show-down phase of the 34-month-old conference, prior to the debate at next month's United Nations General Assembly.

The three delegations agreed to meet again Wednesday. But if any Western officials expected the new move to produce the slightest progress in the bogged-down talks, they were quickly disillusioned by Tsarapkin's initial reaction.

"A solution of the test ban issue is possible only in connection with general disarmament," he declared. "We cannot accept any controls without disarmament."

Young Thieves' "Robin Hood" Gang Smashed

FERNDALE, Md. (AP)—Anne Arundel County Police report they've broken up a Robin Hood band of young teen-agers responsible for at least 32 break-ins and thefts in the northern section of the county.

The youths gave away many of the articles and some of the money they had stolen to "those who needed it," police said.

Four boys, ranging in age from 12 to 14, and a 13-year-old girl were picked up last week, and police said Monday there may be other youths apprehended. All those arrested live in the Pasadena area.

Articles recovered ranged from a set of bongo drums to 30,000 trading stamps. They included transistor radios, watches, wallets, jewelry, bathing suits, binoculars, shoes, cigarettes and several large stuffed toy animals.

Police said they were unable to determine how many articles or how much money was stolen by the band. One of the youngsters told officers he used $25 "to keep somebody out of jail."

The children have been released pending action by the Juvenile Protective Bureau of the county police.

Truman Takes Issue With GOP Charge

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (UPI)—Harry S. Truman said Monday the Republicans "don't know what they are talking about" when they accuse the Kennedy administration of adopting a policy of appeasement in recent foreign developments.

The charge was made Sunday by Rep. William E. Miller, R-N.Y., Republican national chairman.

Gadget Launches Empty Beer Cans

NEW YORK (UPI)—A New York sporting goods store came up Monday with yet another new gimmick—a "beer can launcher" powered by blank .22 caliber cartridges.

An advertisement said the launcher, which shoots empty beer cans 100 feet into the air, was designed for target practice and sells for $23.50.

Judge Rules JFK Exceeded His Authority

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—U.S. Dist. Judge Walter E. Hoffman ruled Monday that President Kennedy exceeded his authority in instructing the Coast Guard to prevent a U.S. marshal from serving attachment papers on the Cuban freighter Bahia de Nipe.

Hoffman said it is clear that the President "has the duty to discharge the responsibilities of the United States in international matters with a view to avoiding difficulties with other governments."

"In the absence of any statutory restrictions," said Hoffman, "he may act through such executive office or department as appears best adapted to effectuate the desired end. The difficulty here presented is that Congress has enacted legislation on the subject."

The judge cited Title 50, U.S. Code, Section 191, which says essentially that the Coast Guard can prevent the boarding of a vessel under seizure to protect it or the waterfront or the borders of the nation from harm, or to secure the observance of rights and obligations for the United States.

"There is no statute expressly authorizing the executive to effectively destroy the judicial process," said Hoffman, "for, without the ability to serve the court process, the doors of the court may be forever closed."

Pennsy Asks Court Action To Bar Strike

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The Pennsylvania Railroad Monday sought an injunction to bar a strike threatened for midnight Thursday by the Transport Workers Union.

It also filed suit for $10 million or "such sum as may be just" for damages it said it was suffering in freight and passenger cancellations because of the TWU strike threat.

Both actions were filed in U.S. District Court, and a hearing on the injunction request tentatively was set for Tuesday afternoon. PRR attorneys charge that a strike would be illegal under the Railway Labor Act.

The TWU has threatened a strike in the 13 states of the PRR system, charging that the PRR used delaying tactics in submitting its side of a dispute to an arbitrator.

Andrew J. Kaelin, a vice president of the TWU, said a strike at midnight Thursday would be a resumption of the 12-day walkout last September that halted all PRR traffic.

Private Rites Today For Gail Russell

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Private funeral services will be held Tuesday for actress Gail Russell, found dead in her bottle-littered apartment a year after she vowed she had won her battle with alcohol.

Police said the death of the 36-year-old brunette was due to natural causes, but an autopsy was performed Monday night to determine the exact cause.

Miss Russell was found Sunday by two friends. Police said she had died sometime between Thursday and Saturday night.

Archer-Biologist Whale Hunter Fails To Get Shot

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Dr. Vagn Glycer, Maryland's whale-hunting biologist, has returned empty-handed from his Arctic expedition.

He didn't get a chance to shoot one of the drug-tipped arrows with which he hoped to kill white whale, and which he has used with success on Maryland deer.

"The weather was too rough," Glycer reported Monday as he returned to his office at the University of Maryland's Natural Resources Institute.

"We saw a lot of whales but the boats were too frail to pursue them," he said. Winds were 30 to 50 miles per hour most of the time and the Eskimo boats leaked heavily in rough water.

Glycer spent 25 days in an Eskimo whale-hunting village on Okevik, an island in the Beaufort Sea off the mouth of the Mackenzie River.

He said the Eskimos, who make an annual summer encampment on the island, had taken 41 whales before he arrived. They got only one more before the bad weather set in. That was two days after his arrival.

"I had wanted to see them take one (with harpoon) before I tried the bow and arrow," the biologist reported. "Unfortunately, we didn't get another chance."

Far from being disappointed about his trip, however, Glycer said he was eager to give the experiment a try next year under more favorable conditions.

"I'd like to go back in May next time," he said. "I know the lay of the land now, what conditions are like and where the whales are."

The arrow, fitted with a hypodermic syringe and needle on the tip, carries a lethal dose of a drug which Glycer says should kill a whale on impact. The drug would not damage the whale meat or harm it for human consumption.

Glycer believes the method will be a boon to the entire whaling industry when its practicality is demonstrated.

Nehru Opposes Division Of Berlin

NEW DELHI (UPI)—Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru said Monday he is opposed to the division of Berlin.

He told parliament the major world powers should forget the "legal niceties" of the Berlin and German problems and arrive at a peaceful settlement on the basis of existing facts.

He said he thought they would be able to avoid a war over Berlin.

Power Firm Seeks Damages

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Electric Co., and the Conowingo Power Co., of Elkton, Md., filed damage suits Monday against 14 electrical equipment manufacturers sentenced earlier this year for a part in what the government called the nation's largest anti-trust conspiracy.

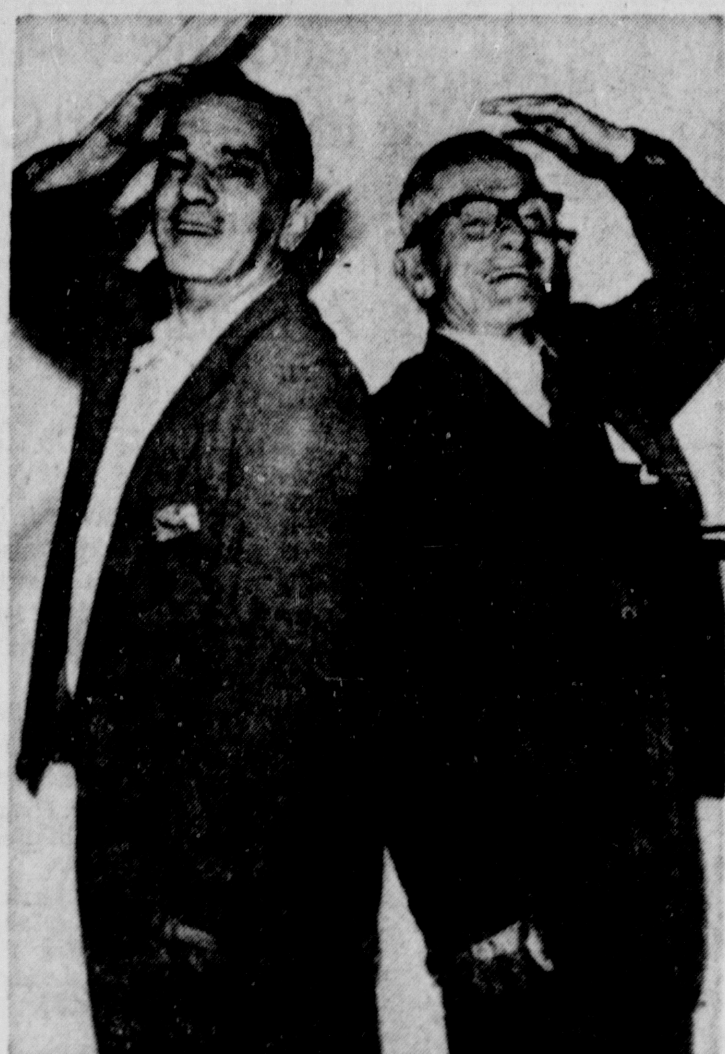

Philadelphia Electric filed five suits against 14 firms and Conowingo filed against seven of the same manufacturers.

The PE suits referred to equipment purchases totalling some $3 million. The amount of damages was not set, pending further investigation. The Conowingo suit, being handled by the same law firm, referred to purchase of some $25,000 of equipment and also did not estimate damages.

Both suits seek triple damages, once these have been ascertained. The suits were filed in United States District Court where earlier this year 29 of the nation's largest heavy electrical equipment manufacturers and some of their officers were fined nearly $2 million for price-fixing and bid-rigging.

Rees Evidence Hearing To Be Held On Friday

SPOTSVYLVANIA, Va. (AP) — Melvin Davis Rees Jr., accused slayer of the Carroll V. Jackson Jr. family of Louisa County, will be brought to circuit court here Friday for a hearing on the admissibility of evidence against him in Virginia.

The Hyattsville, Md., musician is scheduled to go on trial here Sept. 18 for the murder of Carroll Jackson. He already is under a life sentence imposed in federal court in Baltimore last winter for the kidnap-slaying of two other members of the family — Mrs. Mildred Jackson, 27, and a daughter, Susan, 5.

The major issue to be determined Friday appears to be the effect of a June 19 U.S. Supreme Court decision of admission of illegally gathered evidence.

Prior to that ruling, evidence in state courts did not have to pass the standards of legal seizure. If a defendant felt his rights were violated, it was up to him to seek civil redress.

In question are an alleged handwritten account, purported to describe the last hours of the Jackson family, and a .38-caliber pistol. Both were found by FBI agents in a locked accordion case in the home of Rees' parents at Hyattsville.

The FBI had obtained parental permission to conduct the search while Rees, who owned the accordion case, was being held under arrest in Memphis, Tenn.

At the trial last winter, Federal Judge Roszel C. Thomsen in Baltimore refused to allow the government to admit the handwritten account, but permitted introduction of the weapon.

Railroad Retirement Act Revision Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. James E. Van Zandt, R-Pa., Monday urged the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce to approve legislation to allow railroad men to retire at age 62 without 30 years service, at a reduced annuity rate.

Van Zandt said that about 5,000 men would take advantage of the earlier retirement, from the present age 65 limit, and the $2 million cost would require about .04 per cent of the present payroll tax.

Such legislation would bring the Railroad Retirement Act into line with Social Security regulations revised recently, Van Zandt said. He said the Railway Labor Executives Association, composed of 21 standard railway labor organizations, has requested such a bill.

Government Will Sell Surplus Plane Plant

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government announced Monday it wants to sell a surplus aircraft plant at Bengies, near Baltimore. The General Services Administration said bids will be opened here Nov. 27.

Maryland Briefs

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Supreme Court will be asked in about two weeks to declare unconstitutional a new Potomac River compact between Maryland and Virginia.

Hyman A. Pressman, lawyer for watermen opposed to the compact, announced Monday his plan to carry his fight to the highest court.

Pressman is challenging both the compact itself and its approval by voters last year. The Maryland Court of Appeals already has upheld it.

BALTIMORE (AP) — The United Auto Workers local at the Chevrolet assembly plant here has voted 1,051 to 5 to authorize a strike against General Motors.

A union contract expires Thursday. The Baltimore local has authorized a strike over local issues even if national agreement is reached.

OCEAN CITY (AP)—Frederick W. Briggeman, 24, and Thomas E. Wright, 26, of Baltimore were sentenced Monday to 60 days in jail for theft of a wallet and $41 on the beach.

They also have been charged with stealing a second wallet containing more than $300.

Actor Bob Mitchem Unexpected Opening Day Visitor At Md. Fair

TIMONIUM, Md. (AP)—Movie actor Bob Mitchem added glamour Monday to the opening of the 80th annual Maryland State Fair by making an unexpected and unannounced appearance.

Mitchem, who has starred in many Western motion pictures, was on hand to see the quarter horse showing, Belmont Farms, his Trappe, Md. homestead, had entered three horses in the exhibition.

The tall, rangy film cowboy hero, attired in a bright red shirt, tan trousers, 10-gallon hat and dark glasses, was to have ridden in the cutting class of the quarter-horse show, but the job went to one of his wranglers, Bird-dog Rogers.

Sansie Bee his entry in that class, was Mitchem's only ribbon-winner. The horse finished fourth in the contest, which was won by Nicky Dawson, owned by R. A. and Mary L. Myers of York, Pa. There was a crowd estimated at 1,500 on hand to watch the quarter horse judging. They were part of some 6,500 who wandered around the fair grounds while 6,000 were at the race course watching a nine-race program.

Another special guest at the fair was Mrs. Pete Scholen and her son, Cor. of Eindhoven, Holland. The couple, spending a month in this country as guests of the 10th Airborne Division, was given a key to the fair by Rep. Daniel B. Brewster, president of the fair association.

Va. Interstate Road Location Approved

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The state highway department was advised by federal authorities Monday that a western corridor has been approved for the location of Interstate 77 in southwest Virginia.

The state highway commission approved the western corridor 7-1 last December, and the matter had been under study by the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads.

The approved location is in an area extending from the end of the West Virginia turnpike near Princeton, W.Va., to Woodlawn, Va.

Surplus Wheat Will Be Stored Near Altoona

WASHINGTON (AP)—A special committee will be established to draw up a policy for the acquisition of storage space for 140,000 bushels of surplus wheat in the vicinity of Altoona, Pa., Rep. James E. Van Zandt, R-Pa., reported Monday.

Storage of the wheat in that area is designed to have it strategically located for use in the event of nuclear attack, Van Zandt said.

The committee will include representatives from the agriculture and health, education and welfare departments and from the military and civil defense agencies.

Injuries Fatal To Keyser Man Hurt In Crash

A crushed chest received in a two-car collision on McMullen Highway near Rawlings Saturday morning in which only one other person was hospitalized proved fatal Sunday to a Keyser man.

Ira Looman Ravenscroft, 67, of 284 South Main Street, Keyser, died at 6:30 p.m. Sunday in Memorial Hospital where he had been admitted Saturday.

Only the driver of the car in which he was a passenger, Willie Elmer Tate, 353 Davis Street, Keyser, was hospitalized.

Seven other persons in the two cars received only minor injuries and were treated at the hospital dispensary.

State Police said the mishap occurred at 10:40 a. m. six-tenths of a mile south of Rawlings.

A southbound car operated by Ronald Paul Berg, Mayville, W. Va., attempted to pass a stopped vehicle and went into the northbound lane, hitting the front of the Tate auto, driving it into an abutment.

Taken to Memorial Hospital were Tate, his wife, Inez Tate and the victim's wife, Mary (Purdy) Ravenscroft, where the two men were admitted. The women were treated and discharged.

The four other persons in the Berg auto who like the driver had only minor injuries were Annabelle Berg, Chicago; David Nessieroth, Naomi Berg and Irma Berg, all of Mayville.

Ravenscroft's death was due to a crushed chest and punctured lung. He also had two fractured shoulders, according to the deputy county medical examiner, Dr. Benedict Skitarelic.

Trooper J. A. Sweitzer, who investigated, said Berg is being charged with failure to keep to the right center of the highway.

Ravenscroft was born at 21st Bridge, McCoolle, the son of the late Samuel and Lydia (Ravenscroft) Ravenscroft.

A retired B&O Railroad carman, he was a member of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen; Trinity Lutheran Church and its Men's Bible Class, and Nancy Hanks Post 3518, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Besides his wife, he is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Joseph Taylor; a son, Richard Ravenscroft; a sister, Mrs. Ira Bingman, Chicago, and seven grandchildren.

The body is at the residence. Services will be conducted in the home Wednesday at 2 p. m. by Rev. Donald D. Henderson, pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church, assisted by Rev. John D. MacLeod Jr., pastor of First Presbyterian Church, Keyser.

Burial will be in Meadow Point Cemetery, Keyser.

Negotiations With Truckers Continue

BALTIMORE (AP) — Negotiations between the Teamsters International and a group of Maryland-District of Columbia trucking employers resumed yesterday.

No progress was reported after simultaneous talks last week in Baltimore, Washington, Hagerstown and Cumberland. The existing union contract expires Thursday at 6 p. m.

Involved is a contract for some 6,000 members of Hagerstown Local 992, Cumberland Local 453, Salisbury Local 789, Washington Local 639 and Baltimore Local 557.

In Cumberland, officials of the Local 453 have scheduled a meeting Wednesday with representatives of the seven local trucking firms involved.

They are the Chaney Transportation Company, Maryland Motor Company, Novick Transfer Company Inc., Charlton Brothers Transportation Company, Crites Transfer, Harris Motor Express and Morris Motor Express Inc.

Affected are approximately 100 employees of the seven companies.

Virginia Officials Get Report On Potomac Study

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — The mission, composed of observers from the basin states and the district outlined a proposed one-half billion dollar water development program designed to meet the needs of the Potomac River Basin for the next 50 years.

Col. J. U. Allen, assistant engineer of the Baltimore District, presented a progress report to Gov. J. Lindsay Almond and other Virginia officials, explaining the Army's plan for prospective development of the basin. Allen said Congress had authorized the engineers to plan for an adequate water supply, pollution control, flood control and recreation.

He said development of the north branch of the river above Cumberland, Md., would cost the states in the area a total of $16,935,000. The basin area includes Virginia, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Maryland and the District of Columbia.

Almond said there is no state law which would allow Virginia to participate in the program but added that the project was "vital to the area and vital to the nation."

The Army engineer said the flow of the Potomac at Washington would have to be regulated by reservoirs so that a minimum of 6,000 cubic feet per second would flow uniformly to insure adequate water supply and prevent pollution. Requirements at present demand a flow of 3,300 cubic feet per second.

The engineer said his "primary purpose" in making the progress report was to help the states become aware that they must organize to pay their share of the project.

Almond said he favored a "compact approach" whereby the present Potomac River Advisory Com-

Ousted W. Va. Game Warden To Get Hearing

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — The West Virginia Civil Service Commission, apparently disregarding an attorney general's opinion in the case, granted a formal hearing Monday to the ousted chief of state game warden.

The commission set Sept. 25 for the hearing requested by Arthur C. Bachman, former chief of the old State Conservation Commission's law enforcement division.

Bachman was not reappointed by Director Warden C. Lane when the commission was reorganized as a new State Department of Natural Resources last July 1 under legislation enacted last winter.

Lane, who gave the post to a former subordinate of Bachman's, was backed up by an attorney general's opinion which said civil service regulations on dismissals did not apply because the post was a new one, to which Bachman had no statutory claim.

Under civil service regulations, a dismissed employee may demand a hearing before the commission, which then may issue an advisory opinion to the head of the department involved.

Lane had no immediate comment on the commission's decision to grant Bachman a hearing, other than to say he would confer with the attorney general and follow whatever advice he is given.

Bud Wilkinson Plans To Talk In West Va.

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — Gov. W. W. Barron announced Friday that Bud Wilkinson, chairman of the President's Committee on Youth Fitness, has tentatively agreed to speak in West Virginia this December or in January.

Barron, who made the announcement at a meeting of his Youth Fitness Council, suggested it might be a good idea for Wilkinson to appear before the Legislature in January.

Wilkinson, who also is head football coach at the University of Oklahoma, also may speak at a statewide youth fitness conference. Such a conference may be held before the end of the year.

State School Supt. Rex Smith also told the council he would seek Board of Education approval of a new position in his department, one that would have to do with health, welfare and physical education.

This is needed, he said, to establish a regular physical education program in state schools. Smith said he would discuss the matter at a Board hearing next month.

One Killed, Three Hurt In Accident

A 65-year-old Wardsville, W. Va., woman was killed instantly and three other persons, including her son, were injured Sunday in a one-car accident on W. Va. Route 55, about three miles east of Moorefield.

Dead is Mrs. Bertha H. Sites, whose son, Russell, was a passenger in the vehicle driven by William DeArmond, 18, of Moorefield. Dennis Delawder, 17, of Moorefield, also was a passenger. All three were reported in good condition today by hospital attendants.

Trooper Thompson said the accident occurred about 3 p. m. (DST) as the four were traveling toward Moorefield.

He said the driver apparently lost control of the vehicle, which ran off the berm of the highway and headed up an embankment and rolled over.

The trooper added that Mrs. Sites was thrown clear of the car and landed in a culvert, with the auto coming to rest above her over the culvert.

Trooper Thompson said no charges have been placed as yet, but the investigation is continuing.

Mrs. Sites' body was to be taken to the Thurst Funeral Home.

Sacred Heart Hospital Adds Recovery Room

A surgical recovery room has been added to the facilities of Sacred Heart Hospital, Sister Mary Richard, administrator, announced yesterday.

The room, located adjacent to the operating rooms, is definitely for the patients welfare to be under constant observation and care immediately following surgery and anesthesia, Sister said.

Mrs. June M. Dunseth, RN, a graduate of the University of Maryland, who has been specially training for the purpose of handling recovery room work, is in charge of Sacred Heart's new department.

The recovery room has three new stretcher beds which enables three persons to be reacted at one time. The stretcher beds are equipped to enable more gentle handling of the patient, and provide the utmost comfort to the patient during his stay in the recovery room.

The room has many items available for the care of the patient. Some of the emergency features of the room are an emergency drug tray, a combination thoracotomy and tracheotomy tray which enables the surgeon to perform emergency cardiac or respiratory care, piped oxygen, suction apparatus, and blood pressure manometers located along side each bed.

The patients are visited by Mrs. Dunseth prior to surgery and all questions are answered, plus an explanation of the make-up of the recovery room.

Patients remain in the recovery room until they have fully awakened and vital signs are stable, Sister Mary Richard said.

The administrator said the room is only one of many improvements being made in Sacred Heart Hospital. It is felt, she noted, that the new areas and changes will help educate employees for the new policies and procedures that will take place in the construction of the new $4 million hospital planned by the Sisters of Charity in Cumberland.

Boxes Urged For Parking Violations

A discussion on the operation and placement of the city's new parking meters was held at yesterday's meeting of the Mayor and Council, with Mrs. Lucile Roeder advancing the question of placing collection boxes at the meters for drivers who have been ticketed for overtime parking.

Mrs. Roeder, finance commissioner, said it was felt by many that placement of such boxes would relieve parking offenders of the embarrassment of having to go to the Police Station to post their fines, or to Police Court for a hearing.

Police Commissioner Philmore F. Fleming said he had no objection against the receptacles, although he pointed out that they would offer "temptation" to some people.

"The downtown," Fleming said, "cannot be opened up for all-day parking. Meters are placed for the convenience of shoppers, and the major offenders are the proprietors of stores who want to park close to their places of business."

Members of the Police Department, he added, are told to use common sense in issuing tickets to overtime parkers. The matter will be reviewed at a staff meeting later this week, the commissioner said, adding that he will present any recommendation at next Monday's council session.

In other action affecting the Police Department, the Mayor and Council adopted a resolution commending Officer Frank A. Shober for his "long and efficient service." Officer Shober, who held Badge No. 1, retired Sunday after more than 34 years of service on the force.

Council also granted additional leave of absence to Officer John G. Powers, who has been on leave recuperating from lung surgery. Issuance of checks totaling $67,108 to the Orrie Sensabaugh Construction Company were approved by the Mayor and Council. One check in the amount of $60,655.70 was for partial payment of the firm's work on replacing the 36-inch cross-town water line in the Long Hill region.

The replacement was necessitated because of improvement of U. S. Route 40 in that region in connection with the Cumberland Thruway project.

Parking Receipts Down

Harry M. Whisner, meter inspector, reported to council yesterday that receipts from parking meters for the week ended August 20 totaled $786.45. The total was $16.25 less than from the previous week, Whisner said.

Ann Landers . . . Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My wife asked me to write to you about her problem. She says she's too upset.

She works in a factory where all the employees in her department are women. They all work on machines but they don't consider themselves laborers, they think they are critics. Every evening my wife comes home in tears because of what somebody said.

The women find fault with her hair, her dresses, the way she talks and the kind of sandwiches she brings for lunch. One old crow even suggested that she sign up for a "poise course" to learn how to walk better. I think my wife walks just fine.

What can I do to smooth things down at the factory? If this keeps up my wife may quit and we need her check—TURK

DEAR TURK: This is a Do-It-Yourself Project. You can't fight your wife's battles for her. As Harry Truman used to say, if she can't stand the heat she'd better get out of the kitchen. Maybe a new factory is the answer if all else fails.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've been married 11 years and have four children, but this letter is not about me, it's about my sister.

She is 16 and has been going with a boy who is 18. They informed my mother last night that they want to get married. He makes $1.25 an hour and his parents say it's all right with them if that's what the kids want. My sister has never earned a dime and says she never will.

She is the youngest 16 I ever saw in my life. She doesn't know anything about keeping house and has no sense of honor when it comes to paying bills. She'll charge until her credit is ruined, then she'll go charge someplace else.

My mother is tired of fighting with this girl. She says maybe marriage will grow her up. What do you say?—AFRAID

DEAR AFRAID: I'm afraid, too—that your mother is wrong. How can an irresponsible, empty-headed child get anything out of marriage when she brings nothing to it?

Your mother's attitude is one of total surrender, which is what she has done all along. She should accept part of the responsibility for the present mess. Who raised this vegetable anyway.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I go with a lovely girl and I am considering asking her The Big Question. Only one thing is holding me back — she smokes like a chimney. I have never asked her to stop, although she is aware that I'd be mighty happy if she did. She coughs a lot and she smells like the smoking car of a commuter train.

The question is this: Should a young man (not engaged) be expected to buy a pack of cigarettes for a young woman whenever they are out for an evening? Is this considered part of the expense of a date? In my opinion it is ridiculous to buy cigarettes for a girl when I hate to see her smoke and she knows it.—NO FILTER

DEAR ED: A male escort is under no obligation to buy cigarettes for his chimney — I mean his girl friend.

It seems to me, however, that you are swallowing the camel and straining at the gnat. The disagreement over her smoking may not be important but it points up that you two are unable to resolve your differences. When people can't compromise, hostilities go underground, tension mounts, and then all at once — POW!

QUESTION:
I am under 25 and my car is in my name. I carry auto insurance under my dad's policy to save me a rate increase. Am I protected?

ANSWER:
Probably not, as the application would state that the applicant is the owner of the car. It would be an untrue statement in this case. However, most companies would pay the loss, and collect the additional premium from you to rate the car for you as the main operator.

City To Buy New Equipment For Streets

Bids on the purchase of equipment for the Street Department were approved by the Mayor and Council yesterday.

The approved bids were $1,556 by McIntyre Chevrolet for a half-ton pickup truck; $5,479.98 by Graton Ford for a heavy-duty dump truck; $3,935 by the same firm for a ton dump vehicle, and $840 by McClung Logan for a salt spreader.

Council received but one bid in response to an advertisement for a street sweeper. That was submitted by the McClung-Logan firm in the amount of $9,885. The bid was referred to Street Commissioner John J. Long and City Engineer Charles R. Nuzum for recommendation.

The street commissioner also was authorized to purchase a carload of salt. Other street department action included authorization for the installation of catch basins and storm sewers at the intersection of Second and Arch streets.

The bids of the Cumberland Contracting Company for the resurfacing of two streets also were approved by council. The bids were for $4,863, for the improvement of Brookfield Avenue, and $1,258, for resurfacing a portion of Washington Street.

Ethics Spelled Out For U.S. Employees

A new code of ethics for government employees, issued by the White House, has been sent to each major agency within the Executive Branch for dissemination. Accusations against individuals in this arm of government, some of which have evolved into ridiculous squabbles over supposed conflicts of interest involving shares of corporate stock held by government employees, have been persistent in recent years.

It has reached the point where Cabinet appointees must divest themselves of lifetime investments before they will be confirmed by the Senate. The White House code of ethics, it is hoped, will stop the spectacle of accusing a public official, directly or through innuendo, of using his position for personal gain — usually economic — before any evidence of wrongdoing exists.

Certainly every attempt has been made to cover the exigency of returning public officials to the respected level of unquestioned integrity. The new code spells out in language which cannot be misunderstood what behavior will bring rebuke, loss of employment or more serious punishment to persons tempted to confuse personal and public business.

Barred are gratuities for providing any information to an outside source which is not available to any citizen upon request, aid by government employees to concerns negotiating business dealings with the Executive Branch, retaining interest in a business which does work for the employee's office or accepting any gift or gratuity which in any way could be construed as improper.

Problems of impropriety by public employees are not new. Virtually every President has had his share of embarrassing moments caused by one of his top lieutenants straying from his appointed duties in search of greater reimbursement than government salary. The federal government, however, has never encompassed a greater working force than it does today.

Multiplying the number of human beings eligible for temptation inevitably increases the corruption.

These Days

Lost Minutes

It is difficult for the human mind to think politically and historically in terms of minutes and seconds. We are accustomed to think in terms of decades and centuries. When the present war started in 1914, nobody could have believed that it would last until 1961. But it has done just that and all the world is changed. Perhaps we are in another Hundred Years War and somehow we must adjust our minds to that and go about our business expecting short intervals of shooting death.

But nowadays it is necessary to think in seconds and minutes. For instance, a SAC alert might take two minutes; 10 minutes would be regarded as very dangerous. And there are no minutes to lose because up where radar watches, enemy planes and missiles are to be seen and who knows what orders the enemy planes have?

Call me a war-monger, but I know what I have seen. Our air force, at any rate, is prepared; it is ready and alert. But are we ready and alert? Every day I receive letters calling me a war-monger because I insist upon warning our people of a danger which so hangs over our heads that American planes fly in the air on 24 hours duty. They would not be up there guarding us if it were not essential. It does not matter what politicians and diplomats say; airmen and aircraft are in readiness with no minutes to lose or to spare.

It is a rainy day and the airmen sit about as they must do all the time. The Klaxon blows and out they come in seconds and the big planes are ready to go up into the air immediately. Is this peace or fear? Is this readiness or drills? The politicians will not say and they have the last word, but no one engaged in this preparedness has any doubt as to what his job is. Any minute, he might get the word.

Every day I get letters telling me that "it is better to be a Red than dead." Is life so worthless that one could sell himself into slavery just to be alive? Perhaps for some, life is very valuable and they would rather be Red than dead. What a wonderful slogan the Communists have devised. What an appeal such a slogan has to the animalistic instinct of self-preservation.

But has not civilization brought us to a higher level? Do we not ask what is worth-while and what is a noble ideal? Perhaps it is so awful to be dead that the B-52s want to live, too. Only they want to live in freedom.

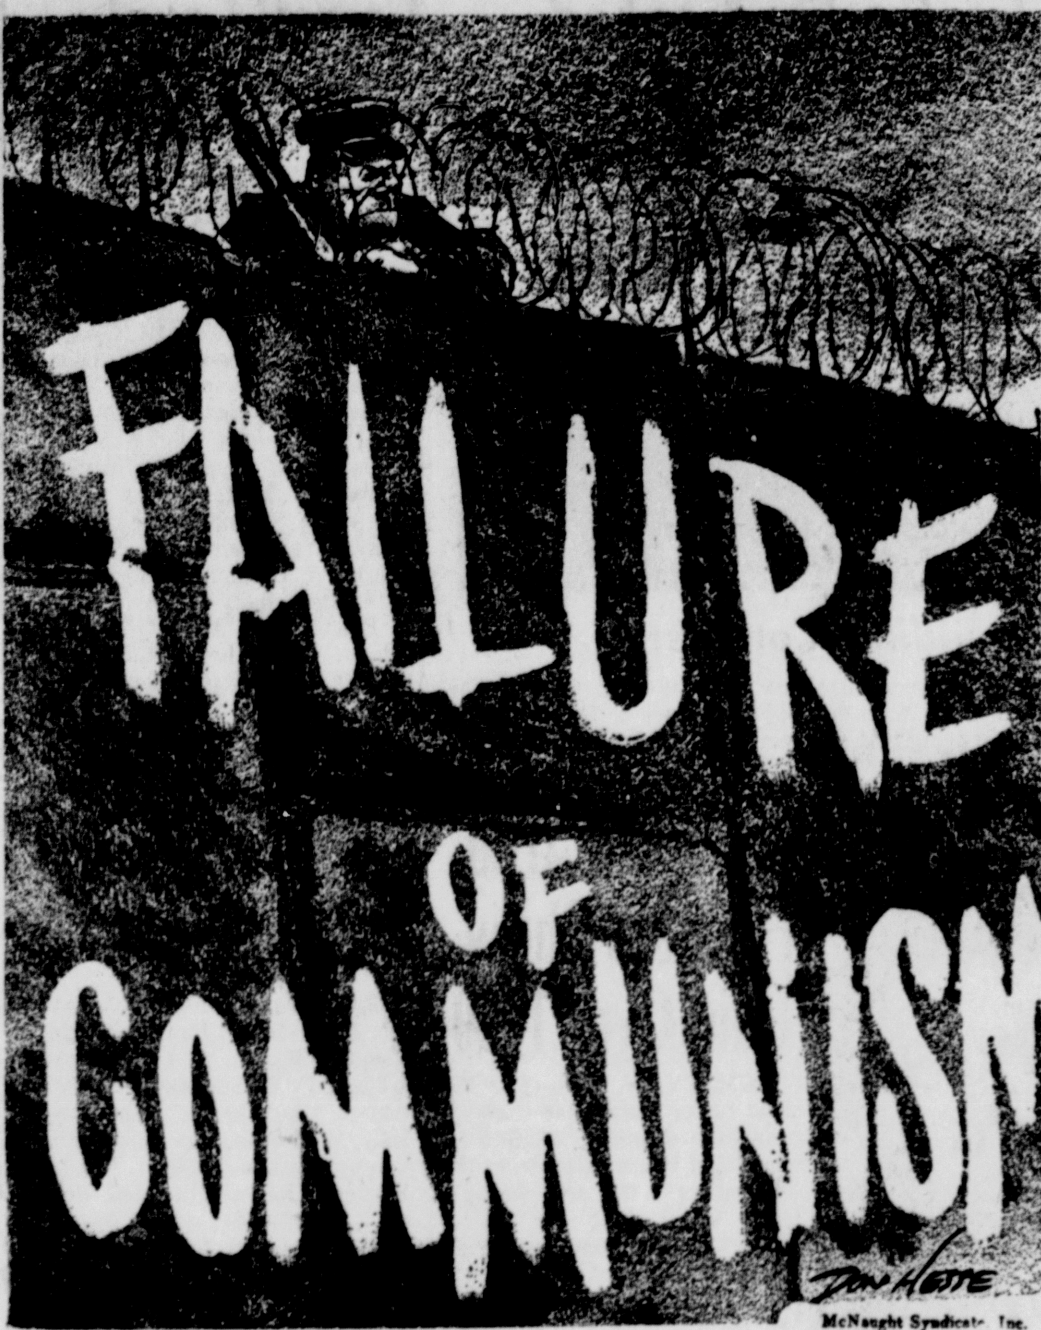

There I saw them stand in the rain in front of their aircraft, loving their ship as men love a home, telling me how they have worked together over the years, in war and in what is euphemistically called peace. Their hours are 24 a day and seven days a week and even when they go to bed they must be ready momentarily to answer the call of the Klaxon. And among them there are really no generals and no privates for up in the air men are in teams and each man must make the team an unbreakable unit. For one weak link can bring them all down—and forever.

I am not saying where I was or what I saw—I only say that I came away with a sense of greater security because the real safety in this war is communications and in that field we excel. We can touch a button and all the world becomes alive in reply. And as one sees and hears, he wonders at those who still believe that the defense of Berlin is unnecessary and that we can ignore the imminence of war.

What we have, they probably have and what we know, they probably know. So it will be a matter of time, of no seconds to lose, of no minutes to throw away. The watchman at the gate may be an electric device but it is also a man, a man with a mind and soul, a man who could find remunerative outlets for his talents but who chooses to serve in this dangerous occupation that his people may be alive and free.

Nation Needs To Contact Church Leaders

By David Lawrence

EN ROUTE FROM EUROPE.—

One of the most effective instruments for the spread of America's ideals and its concepts of human brotherhood throughout the world is not being utilized by the United States government. There is plenty of emphasis on "cultural exchange" in the arts, music and drama, and lots of talk about the need for technical and educational help to be furnished by the new "Peace Corps" project. But there is a tendency to overlook a powerful institution in the world today — the churches and religious organizations.

The contract between the American government and the Roman Catholic headquarters in the Vatican is tenuous. There is little contact with the high-ranking ministers of the Church of England. There is little contact with the high churchmen of the Asian religions.

The other day, the correspondent in Rome of the London "Daily Telegraph" wrote to his paper that an attempt may be made soon to initiate diplomatic relations between the United States and the Vatican. This is probably a mistaken report, and the speculation may have arisen from the fact that Cardinal Ciconnini, the newly appointed papal Secretary of State, is well acquainted in Washington, where he served 25 years—from 1933 to 1958—as the apostolic delegate to the Catholic clergy in America. From 1939 to 1950, Presidents Roosevelt and Truman maintained an unofficial representative—the late Myron C. Taylor—at the Vatican. These relationships were especially valuable during the war and post-war periods, and were thereafter lost in a controversy that arose when President Truman recommended establishment of formal diplomatic relations with the Vatican, and Congress refused to approve.

Since that time, the contact between the American government and the Vatican has been confined to a few visits by dignitaries on both sides. Yet the Roman Catholic Church has tremendous influence in every country in Latin America—each of which is predominantly Catholic in its religious affiliation—as well as in France, Austria, Germany, Spain and Italy. The Vatican could do no more to help the "alliance for progress" to succeed in Latin America than any other single ally.

What is needed is a special organization in the United States government devoted entirely to contacts with all national church and religious groups, both inside and outside the United States. A special representative should be sent to Britain to maintain regular contacts with the clergy in the Church of England and with other Protestant church groups. Another envoy should be sent to Rome as a contact with the Roman Catholic Church. Other representatives of the United States government should go on similar missions to the centers of the middle eastern and Asian religions.

What could these American representatives do? Nearly every one of the big churches has a vast personnel of missionaries who serve all around the globe—Africa, Asia, South America. They LOTTERY — A long-time pet of a segment of the public and Congress alike is a proposal to organize a federal lottery as a device to raise revenues.

Congressmen and Senators receive mail from all parts of the country urging passage of such a law to ease the mounting tax burden. But it remained for an Ohio Congressman, Rep. Thomas L. Ashley, to receive a plea in verse, and to reply in kind. The poetic appeal Ashley received ran:

"Get behind the bill that has been offered / Thus, at least, to keep us even / With the present situation / Of bankruptcy, staring at us / From each state and municipality."

Ashley replied: "You're probably right, it wouldn't hurt you, / Or be a blot on our country's virtue / But nothing short of happenstance / Can induce the Congress to take a chance. / And so, my friend, I'm sorry to say / Your national lottery is years away."

POLITICAL HANDS — Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, of New York, recently confessed to the Senate that he had once been fired from a job. Keating explained that, as a youth, he had taken a job on a farm to set cabbage. "The farmer I worked for had every reason to discharge me," Keating said, "because my hands did not move fast enough."

Obviously, the Senator has corrected this failing in the intervening years. He is still remembered for his 1958 election effort with Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, during which the two men teamed up to shake literally thousands of the voters' hands.

Keating's hands moved well enough — and fast enough — to get him elected to the highest legislative body in the land.

are in close contact with the peoples of those continents. They not only can transmit information, but they can gather it.

Sometimes the church organizations get a misconception of American purposes and policies, and their representatives repeat such misconceptions, not necessarily in the pulpits but in their informal relations with local leaders of thought. It is vital to the whole communication policy of the United States that a means of briefing the principal church leaders of the world should be set up by the United States government—just as it spends a lot of time and money in contacting the press and movie people of various countries, as well as other organizations included in the objectives of our "cultural exchange" programs.

A few days ago President Kennedy and other high officials of the government in Washington thought it important enough to give several hours of their time privately to brief 700 newspaper and radio editors from all parts of the United States on the background of our foreign policy problems. It is just as important regularly to give basic explanations, for instance, to certain people in the Anglican Church in England and the Roman Catholic Church in Rome and to some of the leaders of the various Hebrew theological seminaries in different parts of the world, as well as to the leading personalities in the religious groups of Asia, where the Moslem and other religions penetrate the hearts and minds of tens of millions of human beings. For they ought to be informed of American purposes in the world today. The United States should neglect no means of communication, formal or informal, which seeks earnestly and sincerely "to win friends and influence people."

Malabsorption Syndrome Has Several Causes

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

The malabsorption syndrome is being written about more and more. It is not a disease but a group of signs and symptoms that occur when digestion or absorption of food from the small intestine is disturbed.

Most victims have diarrhea and become weak and pale; they lose weight and appetite. Other manifestations include muscle cramps, bleeding tendencies, scaling skin, puffiness of the tissues, and pain over bones.

Most of the ingested foods, vitamins, and minerals are digested and absorbed along the 23 feet of small intestine. It is here that the enzymes from the liver and pancreas mix with food coming from the stomach. A disease or blockage of the duct from these organs may cut off the supply of enzymes. This results in inadequate digestion of food, especially fats, which leads to diarrhea and undigested fats in the stool.

In other instances of malabsorption, food passes through the small intestine too fast or because the wall is abnormal and does not take in certain nutrients. The outcome is diarrhea with bulky, foamy stools. Other symptoms co-exist, depending upon the cause and what element or vitamin is not absorbed.

One middle aged woman had suffered from diarrhea for years but paid no attention to it until her bones began to ache. She finally consulted a physician who found she was not absorbing a variety of components. But it was a deficiency of vitamin D, resulting in loss of calcium, that was making her bones soft and painful.

Another person waited until she developed black and blue spots and bleeding gums. This woman was not absorbing enough vitamin K to supply her liver with the necessary clotting materials and she had become a bleeder. Anemia stems from deficient absorption of iron and there is loss of strength and weight as the supply of proteins dwindles.

Malabsorption syndromes are not increasing but we are learning more about them all the time as more research tools become available.

HEART DISEASE

D. R. writes: Is it safe for a person with heart disease to swim?

This is an individual problem. The person with angina pectoris, for example, should not swim if exertion or the shock of cold water brings on chest pain. Moderate swimming may be permitted if mild leakage is present.

Khrushchev Quotes Ike As Having Cherished Great Goal Of Peace

By Drew Pearson

was not always his own master. He had those around him who were constantly trying to pull him in their direction. Before our summit meeting in Paris, his Undersecretary of State, Douglas Dillon, made a speech undermining the Paris meeting. Then Herter made a speech, which also hurt the conference. So it looked as if they were getting ready to torpedo the Paris conference.

"I still believe, however, that Eisenhower did not specifically authorize the U-2 flight at that very time. He had authorized the general pattern of flights, but I'm sure he would not have authorized that one."

Ike Suggested Apology

Discussing that famous Sunday in Paris when Prime Minister MacMillan of England and President de Gaulle of France went back and forth between Eisenhower in the American Embassy and Khrushchev in the Russian embassy, Khrushchev said:

"At our one meeting, when I asked for a statement of regret from Eisenhower he leaned over and we heard him whisper to Herter, 'I don't see why we couldn't do something like that.' But Herter said no."

"That was what ended the Camp David spirit and one of the great chances for better understanding between our two nations," said Mr. Khrushchev with a note of sadness.

"Averell Harriman said you were preparing a great reception for Eisenhower," I said.

"The greatest ever given to anyone," Khrushchev confirmed. "We will give a similar one to Kennedy if we can just get this Berlin problem solved. I told Kennedy that in Vienna."

I asked Khrushchev what had become of the hopes for a "new start toward peace" which looked promising after Kennedy's inauguration with the release of the RD-47 fliers.

"We released those fliers with the definite hope for better relations and with the hope of helping Kennedy," he replied. "In the final stages of the American election, the State Department had asked us to release the fliers, but I could see that the effect would be to help Nixon and that he would tell the voters that he could best improve American-Russian relations."

"We did not want to hurt Kennedy, so we said 'no.'"

"Naturally we didn't say we were for him publicly. Averell Harriman had warned us not to. He said 'If you chide Nixon, chide Kennedy a little too. It will help.'"

Dulles Shunned War

"What happened at Vienna to change things between you and the man you elected?" I asked.

"I'm not sure," Khrushchev replied. "I liked Kennedy. He talked frankly. He has a sense of humor. But when I told him we had to sign a peace treaty with Berlin he took a position worse than either Eisenhower or Dulles."

"I came to have admiration for Dulles before he died. He could disagree with you, but you knew exactly where he stood. And he did not want war. He would go up to the edge of war, or as he called it 'brinkmanship,' but he stopped before war."

"At one time we had some trouble with Dulles over Syria," Khrushchev explained. "We received intelligence that Turkey and Iraq were going to attack Syria, so we published the exact number of every division of the Turkish Army involved and warned Mr. Dulles that if the attack was made, we would intervene."

"The attack stopped dead in its tracks. That's what I liked about Mr. Dulles. He knew the facts of life and he did not want war. We hope Mr. Kennedy will take a leaf from the Dulles book."

Mr. Khrushchev talked of many other things affecting the USA and the peace of the world, during our peaceful afternoon on the edge of the Black Sea and more details will follow in an early column.

The Death Men

By John Crosby

GENEVA

"The 336th meeting of the conference on the discontinuance of nuclear weapons tests is in order. Does any delegate wish to speak?" inquired Semyon Tsarapin, head of the Russian delegation, generally known around Geneva as "Old Scratchy."

Those are the traditional words which open all the meetings. An hour and fifty minutes later, the meeting ended with a communique which has become almost as traditional as Christmas: "Discussion continued on the documents and proposals before the conference. The next meeting of the conference will be held at," etc.

So ended the 336th meeting of the longest international conference of modern times, which has stretched on for three long, long years. The Austrian peace treaty actually dragged out over ten years, but it wasn't one conference, rather many conferences held all over Europe and sometimes interrupted for years. The nuclear test ban conference, which affects the welfare and health of all of us on earth, started October 31, 1958, with five meetings a week and, now down to one meeting a week, has continued without interruption to the present day. Old Scratchy (Tsarapin means "to scratch" in Russian) has been connected with the proceedings from the very beginning and may just stay until—if ever—they end. The American chief delegate, Arthur Dean, veteran of Panmunjom and other lengthy talks, was heard to mutter noisily after the 300th meeting that he would not be around for the 400th meeting.

Chances for agreement are even dimmer today than when they started and chances were not bright then. The positions of the two chief protagonists, the United States and Russia, have veered exactly 180 degrees in three years. Then the talks started, Russia seemed anxious for a test ban agreement, the U. S. reluctant. Today the U. S. is anxious, the U. S. S. R. (for reasons which can only be guessed at) is reluctant. In March, the Kennedy administration came to the conference with important concessions only to find the Russians had actually retreated from earlier agreements.

What in hell do people talk about after three years on the same subject? And what do they do with their time? I dropped around at the headquarters of the American mission here the other day to find Olin Whittemore, a young foreign service officer, browsing through miles of transcript, plucking out each reference Old Scratchy has made to "the important obstacle" to agreement, implying that if this were out of the way, agreement would come in a matter of minutes.

However, over the years "the one important obstacle" has been many different things. "He has a very convenient memory," said Whittemore. He will hand these changes of line to the delegates as ammunition to hurl at Old Scratchy's head, which will ruffle the Russian not at all.

In another room, the delegation's science adviser, Dr. Warren Hockroote, a nuclear physicist, was reading "The Times" of London. "It's a very pleasant duty," he said of his six-month stint. "I sit at the table, mostly as window-dressing. I'm there to answer questions about neutron flux, about decoupling, about how deep nuclear devices have to be to escape detection. Actually, the delegates use me to confirm what they already know. They know an awful lot about nuclear testing."

Old Scratchy once called the conference a "dialogue between death men" and the dialogue has rarely flagged. Only twice in three years, when the chairmen asked: "Does any delegate wish to speak?" have the delegates not had anything to say. (Those meetings ended within three minutes.) David Mark, a United States foreign service officer who has been here for two years, said that since March the meetings had degenerated into "repetitive vituperation" but there is never any loss for that. "Last Monday the British purported to be outraged by something Old Scratchy said the week before. Next Monday we plan to be bland and unnoticeable—but by no means silent."

Though casual, even flippant about it, Mark is actually deeply disappointed in the turn the proceedings took in March. He had hoped and expected agreement would come with the considerable concessions made by the Kennedy administration. The personal hopes and despair of young career officers in these mighty and enormously complicated negotiations are very great and the frustrations leave a deep and permanent mark on the human spirit.

"The younger generation are the professional talkers," an old Geneva hand told me. "They keep the conferences going. The older ones, after a good lunch, they turn off their headlights, put on their dark glasses, and have a good sleep. The old ones enjoy the conference life and don't lie the conference get them down. The younger generation are the dangerous ones. They meet a lunch and discuss things—issues, arguments, proposals. The older ones discuss the food at lunch which is the only sensible thing to discuss at lunch."

In the midst of the "dialogue between death men," life in Geneva goes on and life can be extraordinarily pleasant here. The sunshine sparkles on the magnificent lake. The flowers and trees that line Geneva's broad boulevards are lovely and the food is delicious. The per diem living is easy, certainly pleasant than in the steamy jungles of Washington or New York where the American conferees would be if they weren't here. There is a certain vested interest among conferees in keeping conferences going.

In the three-year "dialogue between death men," one British conferee, Hugh Morgan, met and married a Swiss girl. They have had their first child and are expecting another. Mark and his wife expect their first child, too. These are known as conference babies and the deadlier the conference the more babies seem to proliferate.

Price Of W. Va. Auto Tags May Be Revised

Commissioner Wants Single Fee System

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Motor Vehicles Commissioner Jack Nuckols said Monday he would like to see a single fee charged for West Virginia Class-A automobile license plates.

The present regulations set up three fee classification for the plates, with the price based on the weight of a car. The fees are $20, $24 and $30.

Nuckols said a single charge would provide for more efficient operations by his department, plus allow for greater convenience to the public. "I presently plan to ask the Legislature for authority to make the change," he said.

Nuckols also said the State Building Commission has told him to go ahead and look for a possible new site to house his department.

The commissioner had long wanted to move the present operations from the State Office Building where it presently is located. The present location is inconvenient, not only to the public, but also for department operations, according to Nuckols.

Any new building, he said, should be located within three or four miles of the Statehouse. He also would like to have it built at an intersection of roads, so as to make the services more easily available.

Nuckols estimates the total cost of such a building, including both land purchase and construction costs, at $500,000. Financing could be carried out in several ways, but Nuckols has one plan that is his favorite.

He would like to see the Legislature authorize transfer of money from some state fund for construction of the proposed building. His department would reimburse the fund, along with interest, over a period of years.

Nuckols estimates it would take from 6 to 7 years to completely pay the money back to the fund.

Going back to single - fee charges for plates, Nuckols said such an operation would allow him to have "drive-in" windows at a new building for those buying new licenses.

"We could expedite the fee and plate application procedures within a few minutes with such 'windows,'" he said.

"I do not have any recommendations at this time as to what the fee should be," he said. "This would be a matter for the Legislature to decide on."

Detroit Closes In On Yankees By Downing Washington, 7-3

Wood, Kaline And Colavito Clout Homers

Rocky Hits 39th, Tigers Trail Idle N.Y. By 1 1/2 Games

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Detroit Tigers smacked three home runs Monday, one of them a sixth-inning grand slam by Jake Wood, and beat the Washington Senators 7-3. The victory moved Detroit to within 1 1/2 games of the American League lead.

The Tigers took advantage of the idleness of the league-leading New York Yankees as they made up a rained-out game with the Senators. Detroit also got solo homers in the first inning by Al Kaline and Rocky Colavito.

It was the 39th of the season for Colavito, who blasted four in Sunday's doubleheader against Washington. The run batted in was his 120th, tying him with New York's Roger Maris for the league lead.

The continued slugging of his mates should have made the day's work easy for Ron Kline, the former National League who has drawn a new lease on pitching life with the Tigers and now has a 5-7 record. But Kline ran into a seventh-inning jam and Terry Fox finished up.

Joe McClain, who started for Washington and was relieved in the sixth, drew his 15th loss against seven victories.

McClain, after surrendering back-to-back homers into the left field bleachers by Kaline and Colavito, gave up only two singles from that point until the sixth. He then yielded a single to Norm Cash and a run-scoring double by Dick McAuliffe.

A throwing error by third baseman Billy Klaus and Kline's infield hit loaded the bases. McClain gave way to Ed Hobaugh, who promptly served up the grand slam ball to Wood, hitting his 11th homer of the year. The loss was Washington's 10th in a row and its 13th in 18 meetings with Detroit.

Reds Reward Hutchinson With Two-Year Contract

Cincy's First Place Club Was Picked To Finish 6th This Year

CINCINNATI, Ohio (UPI) — Manager Fred Hutchinson of the Cincinnati Reds, who once quit a job because he couldn't get a two-year contract, was all smiles Monday with his signature on a contract to manage the league-leading Reds for two more years.

The vote of confidence for Hutchinson was announced Monday by the club but the contract was signed Sunday just before the Reds took two games from Los Angeles to jump to a three and one-half game lead.

Salary terms were not disclosed. Bill DeWitt, general manager of the Reds, gave the grim, serious face manager two more years, 1962 and 1963, on top of the rest of this season.

DeWitt said he called Hutchinson in Saturday and told him his plans for 1962 and 1963.

"That shows it was a front-runners' idea," DeWitt said.

His players love him because he hates to lose.

Punched The Bag
At one of his previous jobs, the general manager installed a punching bag in Hutchinson's dressing room so he'd have something neutral to sock after losing a game. This came after he had splintered six chairs, a table, a 150-watt overhead light bulb and a trunk.

Sometimes called "The Bear" by the players, Hutchinson was a named manager of the Reds July 8, 1959, to succeed Mayo Smith. The club finished in a tie for fifth and last year ended up in sixth place.

Hutchinson, a former pitcher for Detroit, brought the Redlegs out on top this season by coming up with the pitching to go with the team's traditional power.

Surprises Experts
As a result, his team is the leading contender for the National League pennant to the surprise of experts who predicted only another sixth-place for the Reds this year.

Hutchinson once quit a job because he couldn't get a two-year contract. That was in 1954 while he was with Detroit.

Spahn Beats Phillies, 7-1

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Warren Spahn, given a cushion on early home runs by Roy McMillan and Frank Bolling, won his 304th major league victory and his seventh straight Monday night pitching the Milwaukee Braves to a 7-1 decision over the Philadelphia Phillies.

McMillan, who hit a home run in the first, was the only other Phillie to reach base. He was out in the second. Bolling, who hit a home run in the first, was the only other Phillie to reach base. He was out in the second.

Eleven Archers Beat The Champ In Tournament

Gene DeHaven's 376 Paces Bowhunters

The Cumberland Bowhunters held a National Field Archery Association sponsored Beat The Champ tournament Sunday. The NFAA approved field range of the Cumberland Bowhunters is located on Pine Ridge Road. There were eleven local archers that topped the score of the National Non-Amateur Field Archery Champions. The local "Champs" are: Martha Burke, William Burke, Gene DeHaven, Charles Finkbinder, Junior Halterman, Ward Jamison, Janet Stevens, Lee Stevens, Paul Nazlerod, Clyde Nazlerod, and Dick Sluss.

The National Field Archery Association is promoting annually the Beat The Champ tournament as one of its many activities. At the National Championship Tournament, held this year in Crystal Springs, Arkansas, the National Field Archery Champions were decided. It is one-half the Champ's Field Round score that the local archers competed against and by a special Beat The Champ handicap added to the scratch score of the local archers that the winners are determined.

These tournaments are being held worldwide during the month of August and similar Beat The Champ winners are being named throughout the world.

It is one of the purposes of the NFAA to promote and expand the sport of field archery. These tournaments are but one of the many promotional and public educational activities sponsored by the NFAA.

Chicago Cops Rubber Game From Pirates

Face 5-4 Victim, Stuart Hits No. 22

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Ron Santo and Don Zimmer each drove in two runs Monday as the pesky Chicago Cubs edged the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-4 in the rubber game of a five-game series.

Zimmer blasted a two-run homer in the first and Santo doubled across one-run in the Cubs' two-run seventh and the winning run with a single in the eighth.

Bob Anderson was the victor in relief, shaking off a rocky ninth inning.

Earl Francis, the Pirates' starter, had a two-hitter working for him until the seventh when the Cubs scored two runs, knotting the game 4-4.

Until then, Zimmer's homer in the first and a single by Richie Ashburn in the sixth were the only hits off the lanky right-hander.

Then Francis wilted. George Altman doubled, Billy Williams tripled, and Santo doubled. And that was all for Francis.

Elroy Face took over and struck out two, nipping the Cubs' rally. However, in the eighth Williams batted his second triple and raced across on Santo's single.

Dick Stuart slammed a home run in the second, tying him with Roberto Clemente for the club lead at 22.

Bearcats Arrive
MANILA (AP)—The Cincinnati Bearcats, U.S. national collegiate basketball champions, arrived in Manila Monday for a series of games against Philippine teams.

The second game of the series is set for Wednesday at 5:30 p.m., at Frostburg. Score:

Frostburg Mounties . . . 000 000 1-1 3 1 Lonaconing . . . 000 020 x-2 8 1 Nick Edwards and Ernie Drew, Dennis Bartlett and Bill Bevan.

Flintstone In Finals
Flintstone won by the forfeit route Sunday when South End was unable to field a team for the Tip-top Softball League playoff game. Jimmie's Market will oppose Flintstone in the final playoff series.

Johnson Made 2-1 Favorite Tonight
SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — NBA light heavyweight champion Harold Johnson of Philadelphia, Pa., puts his coveted title on the line Tuesday night against Eddie Cotton in Seattle's first championship fight since Floyd Patterson knocked out Pete Rademacher, way back in 1957.

Johnson, trying hard to prove that he, and not Archie Moore, is the light heavyweight champion, thinks he'll come up with a knockout. He is a 2-1 favorite.

Rens Sign Rollins
PITTSBURGH (UPI)—The Pittsburgh Rens announced Monday the signing of former National Basketball Association star Phil Rollins, who played with the New York Knickerbockers last year.

Coach Neil Johnston of the Rens, an American Basketball League entry, said he expected Rollins to "fit in perfectly with the system I plan to install."

Former grid stars Johnny Lujack, Tony Canadeo, Tom Harmon, Davey O'Brien, Red Grange, George Connor and Cliff Lewis, along with Notre Dame's ex-coach Terry Brennan, are TV announcing this year for the N.F.L.

13 Trotters Ready For Hambletonian
DU QUOIN, Ill. (AP)—A healthy field of 13 three-year-old trotters, coming off final heavy workouts at near peak condition, Monday was primed for the $131,573 Hambletonian Wednesday.

Weather conditions for the Kentucky Derby of harness racing did not appear to be a problem, with the forecast of temperatures in the 80s and only a chance of widely scattered showers. The clay mile oval of the Du Quoin State Fairgrounds should have all the lightning fastness of previous years when Hambletonian mile records fell.

Given similar conditions, the mark of 1:59 1/4 set last year by Quick Song and Hoot Frost appears doomed.

Baseball Writer Joins White Sox
CHICAGO (AP)—Ed Short, the Chicago White Sox new general manager, announced Monday that veteran baseball writer Howie Roberts of the Chicago Daily News has been appointed the club's traveling secretary and director of public relations.

Roberts, 58, will assume the position previously held by Short.

Candle Wood, now 12 years old, has won six races this year at the smaller tracks.

Lonaconing Victor Over Mounties, 2-1

Clark's Two-Run Double Wins Game

Lonaconing drew first blood in the Bi-State Pony Baseball League's final playoff series by winning the opener from the Frostburg Mounties yesterday at Lonaconing by the score of 2-1.

Wheeler Clark's two-run double in the fifth inning was the big blow that gave Manager Bill Fazenbaker's team the edge in the first game of the best-of-three set.

With two away in the 5th, Denny Shockey singled, Gary Sloan walked and Fred Metz slugged to load the bases. Then Clark delivered his two-base wallop that scored Shockey and Sloan and gave "Coney" a 2-0 lead.

Denny Bartlett limited the Mounties to three hits and had a shutout going until the final frame when a three-base error in the outfield and Ernie Drew's sacrifice fly gave the Mounties their lone tally. Bartlett fanned eight.

Nick Edwards went the route for the Mounties, gave up six hits and struck out six. Three of the hits were credited to Clark, who rapped two doubles and a single. Shockey, Metz and Bartlett accounted for the other hits.

The Mounties three safeties were made by Neil Keister, "Butch" Cutter and Wayne Miller.

The second game of the series is set for Wednesday at 5:30 p.m., at Frostburg. Score:

Frostburg Mounties . . . 000 000 1-1 3 1 Lonaconing . . . 000 020 x-2 8 1 Nick Edwards and Ernie Drew, Dennis Bartlett and Bill Bevan.

McKinley, Ralston Take National Doubles Crown

Upset Mexican Pair, Women's Title Won By Hard And Turney

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Fiery Chuck McKinley and Dennis Ralston avenged a recent Davis Cup defeat Monday by defeating Mexicans Rafael Osuna and Antonio Palafox to win the National Doubles Tennis Championships, 6-3, 6-4, 2-6, 13-11.

McKinley, 20, and Ralston, 19, raced through the first two sets in half an hour, then both lost their services in the third set before outlasting the colorful Mexicans in the 81st USLTA tourney at the Longwood Cricket Club.

Nine days ago, in the Davis Cup interzone match at Cleveland, Osuna, 22, and Palafox, 24, whipped McKinley and Ralston in four sets.

County Jail Over-Populated

The Allegany County Jail is "over-populated" this summer, according to Sheriff Paul C. Haberlein.

Sheriff Haberlein noted yesterday that since June the county jail has been housing an average of 40 persons per day, more than double the normal summer average.

On several occasions this summer more than 50 persons were lodged in the county lockup. At one time seven women were confined, another unusual item.

During the past fiscal year, June 1960 through June 1961, the jail handled 10,215 prisoners, for an overall average of 28 prisoners per day, Sheriff Haberlein said.

McKenzie Gets Year Sentence

Albert Wayne McKenzie, 32, of Finzel, yesterday was sentenced to one year in the Maryland House of Correction after being convicted of attempted jail escape in Allegany County Circuit Court.

Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris sentenced the man after he entered a plea of guilty to the charge. The defendant was represented by Earl E. Manges while Donald W. Mason, assistant state's attorney, presented the state's case.

McKenzie, who was serving a 90-day term for a motor vehicle violation, was charged with attempting to escape jail after he sawed several bars in his cell on July 28.

Sheriff Paul C. Haberlein foiled the attempt break after he watched McKenzie work about five minutes sawing the bars.

McKenzie has been involved in several "problems" since being confined to the county lockup in June.

Last weekend he was removed to Sacred Heart Hospital for emergency treatment after he cut his left wrist and throat with a double-edge razor blade.

He was discovered Friday lying on the floor of his cell by another prisoner. He lost a considerable amount of blood, Sheriff Haberlein said.

A Bible and religious magazine were also found in McKenzie's cell. Several religious paintings were on the wall and Sheriff Haberlein said he believed McKenzie had painted them.

The CENTENNIAL SCRAPBOOK

The War for the Union 1861-65 in Pictures

No. 49 Division of the country in 1861 did not follow any religious lines. Both sides had Roman Catholics and Jews, as well as Protestants, among the fighting men and their supporters. The military chaplains included priests and rabbis (for the first time).

The original attorney-general of the Confederate government was Judah P. Benjamin, who was born in St. Croix, Danish West Indies (now Virgin Isles), while his English Jewish parents were in transit to the South. They settled in North Carolina, where Judah proved himself no Philistine. A vari-talented prodigy, he was able to enter Yale at age 14.

After three years at New Haven, he took up study of law in New Orleans and qualified for the bar the day he was 21. He taught school, too, until his success as attorney made him a much sought counsel and an influential figure in Louisiana politics. He continued intellectual pursuits all his life and wrote extensively for publication.

Chosen a U. S. senator when 41, Benjamin was in his second term in Washington when Louisiana seceded in 1861. Benjamin immediately resigned, took part in the organization of the new Confederate government at Montgomery, and was one of the first choices for President Davis' Cabinet. In August 1861, the month of Benjamin's 50th birthday, Davis moved him into the War Department secretaryship, in place of Leroy P. Walker. This proved a mistake, for the wide learning Benjamin had cultivated did not include the fundamentals or realities of military craft. One of his arbitrary bureaucratic decisions incited the Confederacy's greatest tactician, Gen. "Stonewall" Jackson, to try to resign in 1862.

After saving the faces of both Jackson and Benjamin, President Davis made Benjamin his secretary of State, in place of R. M. T. Hunter. In that post Benjamin was declared by contemporaries to be the chief power in the Confederate government after Davis and Mrs. Davis.

In the flight of the Confederate Cabinet from Richmond in April 1865, the secretary of State separated from the Davis party, reached Florida, and got on a boat to the Bahamas. Reaching England, Benjamin took up law practice anew and qualified as a queen's counsel in 1872. He had accumulated a fortune when he retired in 1883 to live in Paris with his wife and daughter. He died there the next year.

Rocky Gap Park In This County Will Be Pushed

$100,000 Sought In 1962 For Land

A concerted effort to get favorable action on a $100,000 appropriation next year to purchase land for the proposed 2,200-acre Rocky Gap State Park in Allegany County was promised at a luncheon meeting yesterday at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club attended by some 50 public officials and interested citizens.

Among those attending the meeting sponsored by the Route 40 Association were some of the members of the State Commission of Forests and Parks and some of those serving on a special commission appointed by Governor J. Millard Tawes to prepare a master plan for state parks to be submitted to the Legislative Council by October 1.

State Senator Charles M. See, who is a member of this special master plan commission, was the first speaker to discuss the need for the Rocky Gap State Park, which would be located west of the Pleasant Valley Road but east of the crest of Evitts Mountain a few miles east of Cumberland. Marylanders At Cacapon

Senator See told the audience that a few weeks ago he visited the Cacapon State Park near Berkeley Springs in West Virginia and found that a large percentage of those in the park were Marylanders from such places as Baltimore, Annapolis, suburban Washington and other points.

If Western Maryland had such an attraction, as is planned in the Rocky Gap development, most of those Marylanders would stay in their own state and spend their money in this area.

A further explanation concerning the Rocky Gap development was provided by Joseph F. Kaylor, director of the State Department of Forests and Parks. He said State Forester H. C. Buckingham had suggested this area north of U. S. Route 40 and south of the Mason-Dixon Line for a state park site.

In acquiring land for the proposed park, Mr. Kaylor stressed the necessity of obtaining enough area on the borders of the park to protect the park itself from encroachment. Between 200 and 300 acres can be developed into a lake by damming the stream which runs through the area toward Evitts Creek.

The state director of forests and parks pointed out that the existing state parks in Maryland were equipped to handle an annual attendance of about 1,500,000. Yet about 4,500,000 now use the facilities each year.

State parks are community assets which help attract new industry and business to an area, the director added.

Mr. Kaylor pointed out that it will be at least 18 months before the state will be able to purchase land for the Rocky Gap development. The request for the $100,000 appropriation needs the endorsement of the State Planning Commission and Governor J. Millard Tawes. If they are received and the appropriation for capital improvements is approved by the General Assembly at its 1962 session, the funds still will not be available until the fiscal year which starts July 1, 1962.

Other speakers included William A. Parr, superintendent of state parks; R. Brooke Maxwell, chairman of the State Commission of Forests and Parks, and Alvin H. Wilson of Cumberland, a member of the State Commission of Economic Development.

Aid Industry
Mr. Wilson, who has studied the Rocky Gap area in great detail, yesterday emphasized that he was interested in the state park development as a means of attracting new industry and expansion of existing industries in Western Maryland.

Edward Habeeb, president of the Route 40 Association, presided at the meeting. He called upon one of the most active members of the association, John L. Towler, to introduce the guests.

Members of the State Commission of Forests and Parks at yesterday's meeting here besides Mr. Maxwell included Arthur K. Spicer of Church Creek in Dorchester County; Willis T. Hancock of Snow Hill in Worcester County and Austin Renn of Frederick, the newest member.

The special master plan commission was represented by Mr. Kaylor, Senator See, Senator Bernard I. Gonder of Garrett County and two Baltimore men, S. L. Hammerman and Morris A. Mechanic.

Five of the six members of the House of Delegates from Allegany County attended the luncheon yesterday and promised their support

W. Va. Delegate Seeks Rule On Snake-Handling

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The state attorney general's office was asked Monday to rule on whether outlawing snake-handling by religious groups in West Virginia would infringe on the constitutional guarantee of freedom of religion.

Del. J. C. Cruikshank, D-Clay, who asked for the opinion, said the use of snakes in a religious ceremony "was an affront to civilization."

If a favorable opinion is given, Cruikshank said he would introduce a bill to make such practices illegal.

commission, and State Senator Charles M. See of Allegany County, also a member of the master plan study group. Standing, same order, are S. L. Hammerman of Baltimore, Morris A. Mechanic, also of Baltimore, both members of the master plan group; William A. Parr, superintendent of state parks; R. Brooke Maxwell, also of Baltimore, chairman of the State Commission of Forests and Parks, and State Senator Bernard I. Gonder of Garrett County, also a member of the master plan study.

Conservation Supervisors Congratulated

SCS Unit Sponsored State Meetings

Allegany County Soil District Supervisors have received quite a few letters from members of Maryland Association of Soil Conservation Districts and State Soil Conservation Committee complimenting them on the successful summer meeting of the groups held here in July.

The letters were read at the regular meeting of district supervisors at the county agent's office in the Court House. All county supervisors attended the meeting at which Wilbert Paul, Mt. Savage, chairman presided.

A new district supervisor will be getting assistance from SCS, according to the monthly report of Martin M. Gordon, work unit supervisor. S. Bryan Stinson, Flintstone, who has 139 acres on the east side of Polish Mountain, is interested in wildlife improvement and a farm pond.

Also reported were basic plans developed with Alvin Wilson, Pea Vine Run Road, 227 acres; John P. Knieriem, Willowbrook Road, 25 acres; Marshall Towell, Williams Road, 100 acres, and C. E. Sinclair, Warrior Mountain, 343 acres; a revised plan for J. Paul Andrick, Town Hill, 247 acres, and work on 800 feet of open ditch at the Knieriem farm.

Drain tile was installed on farms of Albert Kinser, Wilbur Crabtree and E. K. McLaughlin, all of Oldtown; Glen Savage Dairy and Wilbert Paul, Mt. Savage, and Ralph J. Lybarger, Ellerslie. Contour strips were laid out for William Moore on the eight acre Geary farm.

Kenneth M. Stone, soil scientist, reported he completed 700 acres of partial soil survey and 200 acres remapping for Garrett County and 300 acres remapping for Allegany County.

Meeting Today On Dangerous Rt. 135 Curve

Tri-Towns Group To Discuss Safety

A meeting will be held tonight in Piedmont to discuss what steps may be taken to help prevent any more fatal accidents at the foot of Backbone Mountain at Bloomington.

The meeting, which has been called by the Roads Committee of the Tri-Towns Community Council, will be held at 7:30 p. m. in the Piedmont council chamber. Mrs. Arthur Hartman is chairman of the committee.

Those expected to attend tonight's meeting are representatives of the State Roads Commission from Baltimore; Ormal Hoover, chairman of the roads committee of the Tri-Towns Lions Club; Mayor Donald Mellor, of Piedmont; Dr. Neil Williams, a member of the town council of Westernport; Harris LeFevre, assistant public relations director of the Luke mill of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company, and a member of the Bloomington Town Council.

Three serious tractor-trailer truck accidents have occurred at the foot of the mountain during the past year in which four persons were killed.

Those who have called the meeting said it is not a protest meeting, but one to see what steps may be taken to help prevent any more fatal accidents at the dangerous curve.

Recently another group, the Improved Order of Redmen of Westernport, appealed to Governor J. Millard Tawes for action to help alleviate the dangerous situation.

The Redmen organization suggested several large signs be erected on the mountain to alert truck drivers of the dangerous curve at the foot of the mountain. The group also recommended several "runways" off the highway in case drivers were forced to ditch their rigs.

Queen City Gets Barton Milk Routes

Customers of Barton's Dairy at Pinto received word with their home deliveries yesterday that Barton's milk routes will be merged with those of Queen City Co-operative Dairy Inc. effective Friday.

Service will be continued without interruption.

The announcement of the merger came in a form letter signed by Harry J. Barton of Barton's Dairy and John D. Liebau, manager of Queen City Co-operative Dairy Inc.

In this letter, it was pointed out that Barton's Dairy completed 36 years of service to its customers on August 19. The communication identifies Queen City as the largest and oldest dairy in the Cumberland area.

"Most of the milk of the producers who have provided your dairy products, including that produced by Harry J. Barton, will be marketed through Queen City," the letter stated. "Mr. Barton and others of the producers will become members of the group of more than 240 farmer-producers who own and furnish milk for distribution through Queen City."

Room Is Damaged

South End Fire Company was called to 148 Thomas Street yesterday afternoon after a fire broke out in the bathroom of a home. There was minor damage to the interior of the room.

Comptroller Order Slated Next Week

Formal Action Is Requested

An order for the appointment of a comptroller for the City of Cumberland is expected to be introduced next Tuesday as a result of a discussion held at yesterday's meeting of the Mayor and Council.

The appointment has been under consideration since July 31, when the Civil Service Commission submitted a list of eligibles for the position. Listed were Albert J. Lawler and Paul E. Rodecap.

The subject was brought up yesterday by Police and Fire Commissioner Philmore Fleming, who said he had been asked a hundred times about the status of the position.

Mrs. Lucile Roeder, finance commissioner, said she had her recommendation ready and gave it several weeks ago downstairs.

She said her recommendation was the result of eight months of work and suggested that either her recommendation be accepted or Council take the responsibility.

Mayor J. Edwin Keech suggested that Mrs. Roeder prepare an order for Council to consider.

Mr. Fleming said he felt that something should be done next Tuesday, and Street Commissioner John J. Long added he thought the issue should be brought to an end, one way or the other.

Suggests Order
Mrs. Roeder asked Council if it wanted her recommendation again, that she would be glad to give it.

The exchange closed with Mr. Fleming suggesting that an order be prepared for Monday.

Arthur B. Gibson, city comptroller, officially retired from the position on July 31 but agreed to serve as comptroller without pay from August 1 to October 31, and to serve as financial consultant to the city during the period at a fee of $1,875.

Street Surfacing Work Begins

The Cumberland Contracting Company is expected to complete the resurfacing of Sedgwick Street today.

The company yesterday began work on Tilghman Street and applied the first and part of the final course. Crews are expected to complete the street by 10 a. m. and then move to Sedgwick.

Scheduled Wednesday is the application of a smooth-seal surface to School Street.

The company is doing the work on an experimental basis at no additional cost to the city.

The surfacing is applied at the rate of 70 pounds to the square yard, which gives a compacted thickness of about 1/2 inch.

It closely resembles the sheet asphalt used in some cities.

Nine miles of the surfacing was applied last year in Rockville, and another project using some 4,000 tons of material was started there last Thursday.

Industrial Unit Asks City To Back Program

11 Objectives Listed In Plan

The Upper Potomac Industrial Development Company yesterday asked the Mayor and Council to approve the Overall Economic Development Program it plans to submit to the Area Redevelopment Administration.

Formal approval of the program will also be sought from the Board of Allegany Commissioners before the proposed OEPA is submitted, according to John E. Geore, president of the UPIDC here.

Council referred the request to Mayor J. Edwin Keech and the Municipal Planning and Zoning Commission.

Mr. Geore, in requesting formal approval of the City of Cumberland, said the Area Redevelopment Act provides the means by which the federal government, in cooperation with state and local governments and private enterprise, can help areas of substantial and persistent unemployment to take effective steps to plan and finance their economic redevelopment.

Approval Needed

He said the development program must be approved by the Area Redevelopment Administration before applications can be considered for industrial and commercial loans, for public facilities loans and grants, and for certain aspects of occupational training assistance.

The broad goal of the UPIDC program, the application says, "is to afford a full and permanent employment by developing new industrial activities and expanding those that already exist; to improve the physical conditions in the city and throughout the county by acquiring a superior system of highways, by zoning, planning and urban renewal projects; by providing the cultural activities and education possibilities that will enrich the lives of our citizens; by making available industrial sites with every desirable facility; and by stimulating our people to work and contribute to this goal of economic stabilization."

The 11-point program the UPIDC has adopted to reach those objectives includes:

List Objectives

1. Selection of a competent and energetic director of the Upper Potomac Industrial Development Company, Inc., to fill the vacancy that has existed since June 1.

2. Establish a retraining school for new workers in order to fill specific jobs now available in new and expanding garment firm.

3. Obtain federal assistance in the preparation of a comprehensive labor survey.

4. Extend vocational training programs with emphasis on skills presently in such short supply that workers are being imported from other areas.

5. Develop an industrial park and/or obtain such options or agreements as may be necessary to expedite the selection and acquisition of industrial sites.

6. Obtain temporary zoning approval for proposed industrial sites, pending completion of the County Planning Program.

7. Support the proposal of the County Commissioners to bring water from additional sources into industrial and suburban areas of the county.

8. Establish a capital fund by popular subscription to acquire property or otherwise assist the financing of new and existing industry.

Seek Renewal Plan

9. Establish and carry out a planning and urban renewal program for the City of Cumberland.

10. Complete the modernization of Route 40 and the Cumberland Thruway and urge the modernization of Route 220. Seek federal assistance in developing satisfactory air service and terminal facilities. Replace the Potomac River crossing at Wiley Ford and Pinto, which presently impede the flow of traffic, limit industrial efficiency and discourage plans for expansion because of the congestion.

11. Foster programs of higher education on the college level through the new community college and four-year course at Frostburg State; encourage cultural activities and broaden the recreational programs of the community; foster an increase in tourist trade by promoting a more appealing city, by highlighting the events and places in history with which Western Maryland has been associated and by promoting the year-round vacation and sporting activities to be found within the area.

Drivers Are Fined In Four-Car Crash

Two local motorists were fined $26.45 each yesterday in Trial Magistrate Court as a result of a four-car collision early August 20 on U. S. Route 220.

Magistrate Paul W. Barnett found both the drivers, James F. Hilton, 18, of 436 Pine Avenue, and William R. Davis, 343 Frederick Street, guilty of reckless driving.

The accident occurred just inside the city limits on Dingle Hill as cars were coming back to Cumberland from the last night of the Cumberland Fair. The line of traffic had stopped and the Hilton and Davis vehicles were involved in a collision with two other cars.
